TENT CITY FOR PLOW CONTEST—Almost overnight hundreds of tents, both large and small, have sprung up on this southern Minnesota farm at Kasson. They're to help provide for the crowds of up to 150,000 persons expected for the National Plowing Contests. Both major presidential candidates will address the event Saturday. Besides tents, tractors for the farmers to use in the plowing competition abound. (AP WIREPHOTO)

Ghostlike Phantom Riders Scare Daylights Out of Couple Enjoying Moonlight On Drive

"T-t-t-there's t-t-two m-m-men on horses," exclaimed an excited motorists to State Trooper Pete Stohr as he drove up to the police station on the wrong side of the street about 8:30 o'clock Wednesday night. "Where?" asked Stohr. "O-o-on C-c-circle D-d-d-drive, o-o-out west," he answered.

"Phantom riders" had appeared in the area of the new Woodlawn subdivision west of State Fair Boulevard between Third and Broadway. So well were they equipped with ghost covers for their horses and themselves that the young couple parked on Circle Drive, enjoying the beautiful moonlight, were frightened to the point of being speechless. The riders on their steeds rode up to the parked car on the drive, peered into the car windows—but not for long.

The young man hurried started his car and raced to the Sedalia police station. He leaned out of his car as he stopped, wide-eyed, and gave his information to Trooper Stohr in a real "scared" fashion. The young couple, after giving the information, departed without giving their names to the officers.

Stohr, in company with Earl Holstein, State Health Department, and Frank Strain, special officer, jumped into the patrol car and rushed to the locality. Straining their eyes, the men finally caught a glimpse of two white forms in the distance and in the moonlight shadows. Stohr turned on his spotlight and, behold, down the road were the objects, with two pairs of eyes of the steeds of the phantom riders reflecting the light.

Suddenly one object turned and dashed into the wooded area, with the white garb, covering the steed and rider, flowing backward as if it were really a ghost. The other started in another direction but stopped at the call of the officer. The second "phantom" came riding out from the woods to be with her companion.

On one horse was a 16-year-old girl. On the other was a 13-year-old boy. Both were scared when they found it was an officer who was there. "Please don't tell on us; we would be whipped," they said excitedly. Trooper Stohr then talked with the two, informing them how dangerous it is to be riding around with sheets and hoods scaring people parked on the road. The two agreed, but explained "it was lots of fun."

Dismissing them to go home, the two rode their steeds in real horsemanlike manner and disappeared across the subdivision, their sheets floating in the air just like "phantom riders" in the moonlight.

"Although serious," said Stohr, "they did look pretty as they dashed away in the moonlight to go home, their white garments floating in the air."

Had the phantom riders disappeared without being talked to by Trooper Stohr, some might have though they were ghost riders who rode the old Kite race track, coming back to show displeasure over their haunts being disturbed for modern times.

Bunker Hill is a portion of the old Kite track in which the new housing development is a part.

Empty Beer Case Object of Big Search

GOBLES, Mich. (AP) — Tavern owner Earl McNamara scoured the countryside yesterday looking for an empty beer case.

It wasn't just an ordinary case, but one in which McNamara hid his Labor Day receipts of $1,600.

In the rush of business, he sold the case full of beer to four men and remembered a short time later what he had done. Yesterday one of the four returned to the tavern and, upon questiong by McNamara, said the men drank the beer and thew the case away.

Stevenson Outlines Replies To 'Time for Change' Charge

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson laid out today a program of five major speeches, starting with a reply in Denver Friday to the Republican slogan, "It's time for a change."

The Democratic presidential nominee announced through his campaign manager, Wilson Wyatt, that in the five speeches he will deal with the independent vote, GOP "catch phrases" and lay down a farm program, in Kasson, Minn., Saturday.

Wyatt said that at Seattle, Sept. 8, the Illinois governor will give his views on conservation and public power. Stevenson will speak Sept. 9 in San Francisco on foreign policy. The top for a fifth major speech in Los Angeles, Sept. 11, has not been finally fixed, Wyatt said.

Ignores Eisenhower

Continuing a policy of ignoring the activities of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, the Republican presidential nominee, Wyatt declined to comment on charges Eisenhower has levelled at the Democrats in the southern trip the GOP nominee just completed.

Stevenson's manager was asked if the governor's camp was "worried" by the interest and large crowds Eisenhower had had in the South.

"It was interesting but it hasn't worried us," Wyatt said. "Why should it? He has had large crowds but that doesn't necessarily mean anything.

Dewey, Too, Has Crowds

"I remember that four years ago in Louisville, Ky., Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York—who might be called one of Eisenhower's eastern managers — had a terrific crowd. Dewey greeted this crowd by saying they couldn't all be Republicans. As it turned out, he was right on election day."

Wyatt noted that President Truman carried Kentucky in 1948 by a substantial margin.

Reporters suggested that Gov. Stevenson may have been talking over the heads of some of his listeners on his trip last week end and response of his crowds were disappointing to some party members.

Will Understand Adlai

Asserting that the governor will continue to write the final drafts of all of his speeches, Wyatt said he doesn't believe the ordinary voter will have any trouble in understanding what Stevenson is talking about.

"I don't think you've got to write down to the American people," Wyatt declared.

He said Stevenson had made no attempt to give "rabble-rousing" speeches in Michigan, but was pursuing his program of laying down formally his views on major issues. He said Stevenson feels the people should have a chance to size up his program before the final phase of the campaign rolls around in October.

"I think it would be an awfully good thing to treat the American people as the adults they are," Wyatt said.

Cite McCormick Moves

Earlier today, Stevenson supporters tried to drive a wedge between Eisenhower and Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio in the GOP ranks.

They cited the defection of Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of the Chicago Tribune, as an asset in their effort to capture the vital Midwest in the presidential race.

McCormick has advised Republicans to ignore both presidential nominees and concentrate on electing selected GOP members of Congress in preparation for a third party presidential effort in 1956.

A Stevenson aide told this reporter he regards this as a "major break" for the Democratic nominee in Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin and Iowa, where the Tribune circulates widely. These four states form the heartland of a Midwestern area where President Truman won his unexpected victory in 1948.

The Stevenson aide said he believes McCormick's views will affect many Republicans who supported Taft for the nomination, and still are angry that Eisenhower won in Chicago on the issue that Taft's backers had "stolen" delegates in Southern states.

The Stevenson ramp apparently believes that McCormick's views won't affect many Democrats but will cut deeply into Republican ranks. The Democratic nominee's followers said they don't expect to harvest many Republican votes but they do hope that many GOP members will stay away from the polls in November.

Will Cut GOP Ranks

In this connection, it was disclosed that representatives of the Illinois governor had made careful canvasses of the situation in Ohio and returned here with optimistic reports.

Ohio's Democratic Gov. Frank Lausche, a proved vote-getter, is running for re-election and is opposed by Republican Charles Taft, brother of the senator.

Although Sen. John Bricker has announced that Sen. Taft will make speeches for the ticket in the state, the senator did not support his brother for the gubernatorial nomination and there still is some doubt how far Robert Taft will go in urging Eisenhower's election.

Democrats obviously hope to capitalize on this situation in bidding for Ohio's 25 vital electoral votes. They believe many supporters of Sen. Taft will stay home on election day.

Taft himself is expected to meet with Eisenhower some time next week to determine the amount of campaigning he will do before November.

In the meantime, Stevenson, preparing for the start of a Western trip, surrounded with mystery the topics he will discuss on his initial tour appearance at Denver tomorrow. Aides said they could not comment on reports he will answer at that time Republican assertions that it is time for a change in Washington.

One associate said the governor was being so tight-fisted about advance copies of his speech that he wouldn't even let Wilson Wyatt, his personal campaign manager, have an advance peak.

Taft's 'Thanks' To Carl Schrader For Efforts Here

Carl D. Schrader, chairman of the Pettis County Republican committee, has received a letter of appreciation from Senator Robert A. Taft, candidate for the Republican nomination for president, in which he says:

"I wish to say how greatly I appreciate the support which you gave to my campaign and the work which you did in Missouri. I was very proud of the Taft organization; and, if that could have brought about success, it certainly would have done so. We are all fighting for a cause—to keep the Republican Party free of New Deal influences, in order that it might be successful in the election, and thereafter conduct a government based on sound Republican principles. We can still continue to carry on that fight in the states both before and after the election this Fall.

"Of course, I was disappointed about everything, but even more when I think of you and others who spent so much time, energy and money in my behalf without result.

"I want you to know that I shall always remain grateful to you."

Missing Daughter 'Home'

Girl, 24, Kidnaped 22 Years Ago, May Never Know If She Has Found Parents

CHICAGO (AP)—Mrs. Mary McClelland of San Pablo, Calif., and Mrs. Catherine Moroney met face-to-face today but neither could say for sure whether the latter was the mother and the other her daughter who was kidnaped 22 years ago.

Mrs. McClelland, an attractive 24 year old brunette, said:

"I probably will never know" if she is Mary Agenes Moroney, who was abducted at the age of two in 1930.

Evidence compiled by two newspapers, The Chicago Daily News and The Oakland (Calif.) Tribune, had shown that Mrs. McClelland could be the long - missing Mary Agnes Moroney. The evidence was based on blood tests, similarities in tooth structures and other factors in Mrs. McClelland's background.

Gone as Far as Can

Today Mrs. McClelland said: "I just don't know. I think it has gone about as far as it can go. They have done about all they can do, and I probably will never know for sure."

Mrs. Moroney, a thin, worn woman of 40 who has borne seven other children, concurred.

"It is impossible to say," Mrs. Moroney told newsmen who gathered at the Moroney home to witness the meeting.

"She does look similar to the other children, but there is a little bit of difference—whether it would be called marked or not, I don't know."

Feels 'Warm' Toward Girl

Mrs. Moroney had said previously she would rely on her feelings in trying to determine whether the California woman was her long-lost daughter.

What were her feelings?

"I felt warm toward the girl, as far as that goes," she told reporters. "We put our arms about each other. We had been corresponding and it wasn't like meeting a total stranger."

Mrs. Moroney's husband, Michael, 51, was nervous at meeting the young woman who might be his eldest child. They were introduced by newsmen. Moroney, a small, gray-haired man in faded work jeans, approached Mrs. McClelland shyly and asked:

Meets Mr. Moroney

"Are you Mary McClelland?"

Newsmen who were busily interviewing the young woman told her:

"This is Mr. Moroney."

"Yes, I have seen pictures," Mrs. McClelland said, and the two shook hands formally.

Later Moroney, speaking with an Irish brogue, said he could not tell whether Mrs. McClelland is his child.

Ike's Formal Drive Opening In Speech Tonite

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Republican Presidential Candidate Dwight D. Eisenhower, smiling and waving, brought his campaign special to Philadelphia today for the formal start of the drive he has aimed at the White House.

An official welcoming party of 500 Pennsylvania Republican leaders greeted him as the train came to a stop in the Pennsylvania railroad's 30th Street station after a journey of a little more than two hours from New York.

Upstairs on the broad concourse of the station hundreds more spectators and guests waited for the GOP nominee as he strode through the crowd into the lead car of a motorcade to take him through crowded downtown streets to Independence Hall.

Ahead of him lay an intensive minute-by - minute schedule of tours through the city, meetings with Republican groups and individuals and a major policy speech tonight before a crowd that party leaders were confident would overflow Convention Hall's 15,000 seats.

Eisenhower's program listed, in addition to his Convention Hall speech, brief talks at Independence Hall, and before three Republican groups meeting at a downtown hotel.

A scheduled fall meeting of the Republican state committee of Pennsylvania had been shifted here to coincide with the nominee's visit. Eisenhower's speech there was expected to be something of a "pep talk" to the party workers whose job it will be to steam up enthusiasm for the Republican ticket and get out the vote in November.

As Eisenhower wound up his Southern trip at Little Rock, Ark., late yesterday, he tackled the racial issue briefly.

Repeating what he had said in Tampa, Fla., earlier in the day, he pointedly reminded the audience that the Declaration of Independence says, "All men are created equal." Eisenhower also said the founding fathers made no mention of color of skin.

Eisenhower told his Little Rock audience:

"We must approach . . . group problems in the spirit of co-operation and readiness to accept the responsibilities by each of us that are group in character.

"If we do not do that, then there comes that creeping tide of law, central law, that finally results in the all-powerful state and we do it because we are regimented . . ."

Many Repairs and Additions Make Schools Ready for Term

Painting and Cleaning Has Been Done At All Buildings for Opening Day Of New Year, Next Monday, Sept. 8th

Since the end of the last school term in May, the Sedalia School System has been under an extensive program of repairs. The contract work, which includes roofing, grading and other major construction, has been estimated at $7,000. Other work in the schools, such as replacing broken windows, painting, general repair and the cleanup work has also run into several thousands of dollars.

At Smith-Cotton High School all the corridors and stairways have been painted and a driveway behind the building, between school and cafeteria, has been paved and widened. A new automatic pump has been installed in the boiler room and improvements, which include a new water and gas system, have been added to the chemistry room.

New Doors at Horace Mann

Horace Mann School received a new coat of paint inside the old building and the windows and doors on the outside were also given a coat of weather paint. Among the improvements which were made was a new tile drain from the roof to the street; a new sidewalk in front of the school and new doors on the old building. These improvements were in addition to the regular summer work of varnishing woodwork and floors and placing new chat on the playground.

Washington Goes Modern

Washington School has gone modern this year with newly decorated rooms in pastel colors, ranging from powder blue to turquoise. Washington also has been converted to gas heating and is the last school in the Sedalia system to obtain this type of heating. The office in the building has been redecorated and a new asphalt floor was installed. Along with other minor repairs and cleaning, the windows and doors on the outside were also painted.

New Rooms at Mark Twain

Mark Twain School has also received a modern air with newly pastel painted classrooms and offices. The boys room was also equipped with two showers for use with the gymnasium. One new classroom was added at Mark Twain to handle the increased enrollment. The room was furnished with new equipment, including desks, and is located where the kindergarten was formerly held.

Repair Broadway Belfry

Broadway School received a great deal of cleaning and redecorating through the summer including some work on the old belfry. One room in the school was fixed into a classroom and new furniture was installed. Other painting throughout has improved the looks of the school and made it much lighter and more cheerful.

Repairs at Jefferson

Most of the work completed at Jefferson School was of a general construction nature. The walls and ceilings were patched and painted and the roof over the school was repaired. The most noticeable improvement was the addition of an outlet from the basement on the northwest.

New Roof at Whittier

Whittier School was re-roofed completely and the walls in the building were plastered and painted. A window fan was placed in the basement and other work consisted of minor repairs and cleaning.

Lunch Room at Hubbard

At the last school board meeting a bid was let to the Dean Construction Company for building of an addition to Hubbard school as a lunch room. The bid which was accepted was for $16,211 and the room will be constructed on the west, between the hall which connects the high school and the grade school buildings. Other construction, which already has been completed at Hubbard, consists of the painting of outside windows and doors, painting on the wainscoting inside and new roofing over the old manual training shop and auditorium.

The schools are now ready for the opening on Monday, Sept. 8, and for the most part they will provide clean and well equipped rooms for both students in grade and high schools.

More Neatness In Registration Books Needed

Legislative Election Law Committee Urged To Make New Demand

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Judge J. Henry Caruthers of the Cape Girardeau Court of Common Pleas said today a little neatness and tidiness in voter registration books would be a big help.

He wrote a letter to the joint legislative election law revision commission, urging that change.

Voters should be required to register at intervals, say every four years, Judge Caruthers said. That would help keep the books in better shape.

"Our Cape Girardeau city registration books have grown to be very bulky, unwieldy and hard to handle," he wrote.

"They are a conglomerated mass of no information, misinformation and a source of constant complaint and criticism. I suppose it is really unfair to expect a registrar under the present laws to acquire any substantial degree of competency in dealing with such so-called records."

He said the registration lists should be "kept clean, up-to-date and dependable."

The commission met today for its second public hearing. But most of the suggestions already were in—in letters and pamphlets from outstate cities and counties.

Tomorrow, individual voters will have a chance to air their complaints about Missouri's hodge podge election laws, the accumulation of years of additions and only infrequent weedings.

Generally the suggestions were on minor points that would in the long run clear out a lot of obsolete laws, clarify confusing phraseology or speed up the election job in the rural areas.

Howard C. Potter, city attorney of Springfield, offered these main suggestions:

1. Permit use of voting machines throughout the state but leave it up to the local election officials or the people whether the expense of such machines would be worth while. He said since they would be used frequently in statewide elections, the state should bear part of the cost.

2. Put a top age limit on judges and clerks. In the old days, Potter said, those jobs were considered public services and highly qualified persons tok them. Lately, he added interest has lagged and generally the only people who will take them at the low salaries are "so old that they are inefficient."

3. Shorten the polling hours by an hour or so. Potter said the present 13-hour voting day, from 6 a. m. to 7 p. m., was set up back in the days when people worked 12 or 15 hours a day.

4. Increase the limits for campaign expenses since candidates now are faced with a lot higher prices for campaigning—and radio campaigning now is well established with television beginning to take an important place, too, he said.

Adlai By 1 to 2

LONDON (AP) — One of Britain's leading handbooks made Democrat Adlai Stevenson a 1 to 2 favorite today to win the U. S. presidential race from Republican Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Eisenhower To Visit Sedalia On Sept. 20

According to information released Wednesday by GOP National Chairman Arthur E. Summerfield, Gen. Dwight Eisenhower will be in Sedalia Sept. 20.

The arrangements are unknown at this time. At the Missouri Pacific station here an official said that in all probability the train will be a special one, and the stopover here will be of short duration.

Other scheduled stops the same day on the train which will run from Kansas City to St. Louis include Warrensburg and California.

Seeking Man For Molesting Girl, 6, Here

Described as 30 Years Old, He Was Driving Grey Car

A statewide search is on for a man described as being about 30 years old, driving a grey Ford car, wanted for molesting a six-year-old girl in Sedalia Wednesday night. A warrant for the man has been issued by Prosecuting Attorney Harold Bamburg, charging him with molesting a minor child.

The child was examined by Dr. K. L. Holdren Wednesday night shortly after she had been returned to her parents. She did not suffer injury, but was greatly bewildered at events which had occurred during her detainment by the man who had picked her up in front of her home.

The little girl was playing with other children in the neighborhood when the man drove up and parked. It was reported by one of her little playmates the man encouraged the child to hide by his car when they were playing hide-and-seek. The child verified this after she was returned to her parents.

It was about 8 o'clock when the man picked up the little girl and drove off, but it wasn't until about an hour later, after the frantic parents had searched the neighborhood looking for her, that a report was made to the police. Chief of Police Edgar Neighbors immediately assigned all avaliable officers to the search along with the State Highway Patrol and several volunteers who were visiting at police headquarters.

In the meantime a request was made to KDRO to broadcast a missing report on the child and this brought out more persons who assisted in the neighborhood search.

Police officers began driving country roads, one group going to the MKT stockyards. As the patrol car pulled up at the stockyards drive and parking lot, a car backed out slowly and pulled away. The police at the time had no description of the car or man, but the officers noted the license number of the vehicle and took it down. One officer said, "Our first thought was to try and find the child and a search of the surrounding area was made."

Shortly after 10 o'clock the little girl was driven back to within a short distance of her home and let out of the car. Neighbors found her and immediately took her to her parents.

It was not until after the child was found that one of her playmates reported seeing the automobile in which she disappeared. He told the officers the description of the vehicle and of the man. The description of the car tallied with that from which police obtained the license number.

The State Highway Patrol has broadcast over its network for the pickup of the man answering the description given by the child and her playmate.

Employment Jump Seen In Missouri

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Employment is on the upswing again in Missouri after sharp drops in August and July.

Charles A. Ricker, head of the division of employment security, reported today employment started upward last week after crippling strikes had ended. Employment offices in Kansas City and St. Louis, he said, now have 2,000 job orders going begging.

John L. Pushing Contract

Wants Hard Coal Issues Settled In Order to Start Soft Coal Bargaining

WASHINGTON (AP) — John L. Lewis was reported today striving for a quick hard coal agreement so he can concentrate on negotiations with the bigger and more far-flung soft coal industry.

Lewis has never publicly served demands on either the anthracite (hard coal) or bituminous (soft coal) mine owners. But he is reportedly aiming for a sizable boost in the hard coal welfare fund and more wages and share-the-work provisions for soft coal miners.

Talks between the anthracite operators and Lewis' United Mine Workers union took on a hopeful note. Thomas E. Kennedy, the UMW's vice president, told newsmen "some progress" was being made.

The talks, held previously in New York and Wilkes-Barre, Pa., moved here yesterday. The progress statement was made after a one hour session during which Lewis, Kennedy and Edward G. Fox, president of the Philadelphia & Reading Coal and Iron Company and chief industry negotiator, huddled privately.

The negotiations were scheduled to resume today at the union's headquarters.

Both hard and soft coal operators now pay 30 cents a ton on all coal production toward union welfare funds to finance pension for ex-miners and other benefits.

Hard coal miners produce only about a third as much tonnage as soft coal miners, and the anthracite tonnage royalty has not been enough to pay the pensions. Hard coal miners have been making up the deficit themselves, paying $1 assessments every two weeks. The bituminous welfare fund, by contrast, has a 100 million dollar surplus.

Lewis is believed to be driving hard for a bigger anthracite royalty—perhaps as much as 50 cents a ton.

In the soft coal industry, Lewis has talked informally—with Harry Moses, representing northern mines, and Joseph Moody, spokesman for southern bituminous interests—on a share-the-work plan.

With some soft coal miners working only two or three days a week and others four or five days, Lewis wants some plan to level out the employment. A higher pay rate, or penalty, for all work done after three days a week has been mentioned.

The miner's basic wage is $16.35 for an eight-hour day, part of which includes travel time and a lunch period.

Orientation Day At Smith-Cotton High On Friday

Orientation Day at Smith-Cotton High School will be held Friday, Sept. 5, at 2 p. m. and all eighth graders and any new students who have not previously attended the school are expected to attend.

Polio Victim Home

Mary Margaret Rouchka, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rouchka, 1100 State Fair Boulevard, who had a light form of polio, has returned home from Kansas City where she has been the past ten days in General Hospital. Her condition is satisfactory and she has no paralysis.

Brother of Sedalian Becomes Ace Today As U.S. Airmen Shoot Down 11 Commie MIGs

SEOUL, Korea (AP) — The U. S. Fifth Air Force said U. S. Sabre jet pilots today shot down 11 Red MIG jets and crippled three in fiery air battles over North Korea.

America's 19th jet ace of the Korean War was crowned in the fiery battles.

Maj. Frederick C. Bleese of Phoenix, Ariz., shot down his fifth MIG to qualify as an ace. He is the son of Brig. Gen. (Ret.) and Mrs. F. A. Bleese, Richmond, Va.

The fast Sabres bagged their whopping total of Russian-type jets after U. S. Okinawa-based Superforts last night attacked the Changjin hydroelectric plant in North Korea—newly repaired from previous bombings.

Allied losses, if any, in the blazing dogfights will be reported in a weekly summary later this week.

One Sabre pilot reported seeing a MIG go down without absorbing a shot during the jet battles between the Yalu and Chongchon Rivers in extreme northwest Korea.

Capt. Arthur McCarthy, Dearborn, Mich., said the Red jet overshot him, went out of control, and its pilot bailed out.

The Air Force said an unidentified U. S. pilot bailed out of his damaged Sabre over neutral territory, presumably the Panmunjom truce conference site.

The fiery battles came during a break in the bad weather which Wednesday kept virtually all U. N. planes but the big superforts on the ground.

Clouds covered the key power installation and the B29s used radar to aim their bombs.

The Far East Air Forces said in Tokyo there was no Red opposition and all the bombers returned. The number on the raid was not disclosed.

U. S. Marine fliers knocked out Changjin's Plant No. 1 — last night's target — late in 1950. Repaired, it was bombed in a big air attack last June. The Air Force said new repair work indicated the turbines were desperately needed to bolster the Communist power supply.

Winds up to 70 miles an hour and about four inches of rain lashed parts of the battlefront Tuesday and Wednesday.

Reds probed 11 times across the front Wednesday. Chinese troops felt out Bunker Hill near Panmunjom again this morning, then withdrew.

None of the skirmishes involved more than 25 to 30 soldiers.

Major Blesse Is Mrs. Bobbitt's Brother

Maj. Frederick C. Blesse, mentioned in the accompanying story as the newest American ace in Korea, is a brother of Mrs. A. M. Bobbitt, Sedalia, wife of Major Bobbitt of the Sedalia Air Force Base.

Blesse is making his second tour of duty in Korea, having volunteered to go back for 100 more missions after completing 107 missions in his first period over there. He wanted to become an ace and for that reason asked to return after a two-month leave at home following his initial Korean experience.

Married, his wife making her home in Phoenix, Blesse has been in Korea when both of his children were born—the first time he was there—his son was born and while he has been there for the second time he has become the father of a daughter he'll see when his tour of duty is completed.

Truman Looks Gleefully To New Trip

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Truman looked forward eagerly today to his next "whistle stop" tour after his first strenuous, nine-speech, two-day stumping trip for Adlai Stevenson, whom he called a "wonderful candidate."

So enthusiastic was the President over his reception at rear platform talks in West Virginia yesterday that he assured crowds he is already thinking of campaigning for the Democrats again in 1956.

Truman's scheduled dedication of the Hungry Horse Dam in Western Montana Oct. 1 likely will turn into another, longer "give 'em hell" tour of the interior by train. And he is ready to keep his special train running after that right up until election time.

It's up to the Democratic National Committee to pick up the check, as it did on the Labor Day trip to Milwaukee, from which the President returned last night outwardly confident that the cost was worthwhile. The committee paid his transportation costs, including 10 first-class tickets for his bullet-proof private car and 30 minutes of radio network time.

Truman opened up on Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, the Republican presidential nominee. At Milwaukee he called him the "lonely, captive candidate" of GOP "special interests."

And at Parkersburg, W. Va., yesterday he called him a "spokesman for selfish politicians" willing to risk atomic war with Russia by loose talk about liberating the enslaved peoples of Eastern Europe.

Truman said one of Eisenhower's "masterminds-aides" said he referred to John Foster Dulles—"is perfectly willing to have the Republican party and the Republican candidate say things that increase the risk of war, simply in order to get votes."

The President called this "cruel, gutter politics."

Dulles, asked to comment by a reporter in New York, said:

"Last week in a debate with me, Mr. Averell Harriman, speaking for the Democratic party, said that our Republican program of liberation had been 'cribbed' from Democratic policies. Now President Truman says that liberation is 'gutter politics.' I wonder whether they got their wires crossed."

Truman, referring to Republican talk of rolling the Iron Curtain back to the Soviet border, said, "Surely the Republican candidate must know the Kremlin walls will not come tumbling down from a few blasts on a campaign trumpet."

While he said he thought foreign policy should be kept out of the political campaign. Truman challenged the GOP to make it an issue.

"I'll meet them on any platform and I'll make them jump off that platform before I get through," he said.

Correspondents aboard Truman's campaign train noted an increasing enthusiasm on his part for Adlai Stevenson, the Democratic nominee to succeed him. At Clarksburg W. Va., Truman told a trainside crowd:

"If you will just listen to what he (Stevenson) has to say, you will find that he stands four-square on the Democratic platform, and that when you make him president the forward-looking steps which the Democratic party has taken in the last 20 years will be continued."

Earlier at Crestline, O., he said Stevenson's election would assure continuance "down the road of good times for everybody."

"MISS AMERICA" HOPEFULS—Five pretty girls who arrived in Atlantic City, N. J., to compete in the Miss America Pageant, find that posing in bathing suits on the resort city's boardwalk is the first order of business. Left to right are: Florence Mae Spack, Miss Missouri; Joan Elizabeth Kayne, Miss New York City; Beverly Kathleen Rivera, Miss Hawaii; Sandra Kay Hart, Miss South Dakota; and Neva Jane Langley, Miss Georgia. (AP WIREPHOTO)

MARILYN NOT IN ACCORD—An army major requested that the above photograph be banned because it might embarrass parents of service girls, (see article below). Marilyn Monroe, center, screen actress, said she was "really very hurt" because the army didn't like the picture. With Marilyn in the photo, made at a beauty pageant in Atlantic City, N. J., are YNSN Frances J. McDonald, left, of Longmont, Colo., and S/Sgt. Carol A. James, Pittsburgh, Pa. (NEA TELEPHOTO)

Miss America Hopefuls Play Step-Child Roles to Marilyn

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP) — Fifty-two Miss America beauties take over center stage tonight after playing wallflower roles to bosomy, blonde screen star Marilyn Monroe yesterday.

The pretty pretenders to the coveted crown compete for all-important points in preliminary beauty and talent contests in Convention Hall.

A third will appear in evening gowns, a third in bathing suits and the rest will show the judges they can do more than look lovely by singing, acting or dancing.

There will be more of the same tomorrow night and Friday night until each girl has had a chance to appear in all three contests. The finals will be held Saturday night.

The girls were introduced to a cheering crowd of 150,000 in a colorful parade along the boardwalk yesterday but Miss Monroe's face and fortune filled most of the camera lenses.

The shapely blonde languished atop an open convertible car as parade grand marshal in a scanty, form-fitting black affair that featured a plunging "V" cut to the waist.

Earlier in the day, Miss Monroe posed for a picture aimed at attracting recruits to the women's armed services in a low-necked polka dot dress.

A few hours later, after Army officials got a look at the photograph, newspapers and wire services were asked to withhold it from publication.

Maj. Frank W. McWalters of the Air Force said Miss Monroe's pose was not in line with a program designed to convince parents the services are perfectly proper places for their daughters.

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — What do beauty contest queens seek in a husband? Handsomeness and wealth aren't important, they say. He must be sincere.

Time was when glamor girls only went for men who were adonises or loaded with dough, or both. The gals are now looking for elements of character, according to my survey of nine beauty winners.

Surveying beauties is not bad work, especially when they are attired in flesh-colored bathing suits. That's how the nine were dressed (or undressed, according to how you look at it) for their roles as Martian Amazons in "Abbott and Costello Go to Mars." The gals were selected from the Miss Universe contest for a chance at movie success.

Questioned about what they wanted in their future husbands, they replied:

Miss New Jersey, Ruth June Hampton of Merchantville — "I want him to be sincere, ambitious and have good character. He should be a typical man, not a pretty boy. I like rugged men."

Miss Germany, Renate Hoy of Berlin—"First of all, he should have sterling character. Secondly, he should have enough money so we don't starve. I would like a man tall, dark and brown-eyed, or tall, blonde and blue-eyed."

Miss Louisiana, Jeanne Thompson of Baton Rouge—"The main thing I want in a man is sincerity. There is too much insincerity in the world, and especially in Hollywood where it is taken for granted."

Miss Michigan, Judy Hatula of Detroit—"I want a man who is tall, broad-shouldered, handsome, wealthy, intelligent, an actor and with the same religion that I have. Of course, I won't find a man like that. So the main things I'll look for are sincerity, faithfulness and honesty. I really want a man who will keep our family together."

Miss Sweden of 1951, Anita Ekberg of Malmo—"I want a man who will look at me and like me. I don't mind if he looks at other women; he wouldn't be normal if he didn't. But I don't want him to like other women. He should be handsome, but that isn't essential. The main things are that he should be smart, have a sense of humor and like to do crazy things, as I do."

Miss Welcome to Long Beach, Jeri Miller—"The most important thing is compatibility. We should have understanding and respect for each other. He should be tall, but not necessarily handsome. Wealth is desirable but not essential."

Miss U. S. A., Jackie Loughery of Brooklyn—"I don't care if he's tall or handsome, just so he's rugged. I'd like him to be in show business, because that's what I'm interested in. He doesn't have to be a college graduate, but he does have to have something on the ball."

Miss Hawaii, Elza Edsman of Honolulu—"He'd have to be athletic; I love athletic men. Also intelligent and the life of the party. He should be tall, dark with dark hair, but not necessarily handsome."

Miss Montana, Valerie Jackson of Missoula—"He's sincere, truthful, happy, handsome, helpful around the house, loves dancing and sports. He's also 6 feet 3, weights 207 pounds and —."

Valerie had a pretty good blueprint of the guy. She explained that she has already found and married him. He's Air Force Lt. Alan Jackson, currently of Korea.

Thomas' Visit Son, See Part of Legion Parade In New York

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Thomas, 813 East '6th, have returned from a week's vacation in the East. They visited with their son and family, Mr. and Mrs. Buddy Thomas, at Scranton, Pa., for several days.

Buddy is now playing with the Scranton ball club in the Eastern League. The season will close for the club on Sept. 7.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas also visited in New York City and had the pleasure of witnessing a part of the American Legion parade, held during the national convention. Mr. Thomas is a past commander of Pettis County, No. 16, American Legion.

They also visited with Mr. and Mrs. James Tait, Syracuse, N. Y., for several days. Mr. and Mrs. Tait are former Sedalians.

DeMolays Back Into Harness; Attend Conclave

After a hot summer vacation of rest and work, the Sedalia Chapter of DeMolays has gone back into action.

The first thing on the list for the DeMolays was a district conclave held at the newly opened chapter at Independence on Aug. 30. At this conclave the boys of the western section of the state discussed many ideas which will make the DeMolays better than ever.

There were lighter moments at the conclave, too, a gala banquet which was served by the Job's Daughters chapter, and swimming in the afternoon when one of the men interested in the DeMolays offered his pool to the boys. When the meeting was over, the DeMolays were given their choice of either going to a dance or more swimming.

The boys who attended this conclave are: Bill Williams, J. M. Maxwell, Gary Johnson, Kurman Riley, Marvin Bohon and Don Rapp.

Bill Williams was elected to the highest office in this district, Kurman Riley to the office of second preceptor; Marvin Bohon, sixth preceptor; Don Rapp, aide; J. M. Maxwell, almoner; Gary Johnson, junior steward.

The DeMolays were accompanied by William Matthews, Howard Gwinn, O. R. Cox and J. W. Wheatly.

Fire Sweeps Freighter And Kills Two Men

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—Fire swept through the Norwegian freighter Hopeville early today and the Coast Guard said two men were killed and four burned.

The fire raged for two hours before it was extinguished by fire fighting equipment from Norfolk, the Coast Guard and the Navy.

The dead were not immediately identified.

The 440-foot, 5,300-ton Hopeville arrived in Norfolk yesterday with a cargo of manganese ore and mahogany logs. A night watchman at the dock discovered the fire, whose origin was not determined.

Red Cities Have Unemployment

HONG KONG (AP) — Communist China has three million unemployed in its major cities, says the Peiping Peoples Daily, organ of the Communist party.

4 Killed by War II Jap Navy Torpedo

TOKYO (AP)—Four persons were killed and six injured today in the explosion of a World War II Japanese Navy torpedo at a Kure dockyard. Four others are missing.

Kyodo News Agency said the torpedo blew up when a workman began to cut it up for scrap.

BANG'S DISEASE (BRUCELLOSIS)

This is a widespread infectious disease. Animals are usually infected by eating or drinking contaminated feed or water. This is the cause of undulant fever in man, contracted by drinking raw milk from infected cows.

The only noticeable symptom may be the abortion of a premature calf which usually takes place between the fifth and eighth months of pregnancy. Retained afterbirth, vaginal discharge, sterility, decreased milk production and weak calves are generally associated with the disease. At the present time there is no treatment for this disease.

Prevention consists of calfhood vaccination and good management with proper sanitation. Calfhood vaccination should be carried on as a regular program. The vaccine depends upon live organisms. We think that the vacuum dried vaccine is far superior to any other kind because it will remain potent and have a higher count of living organisms at time of use than any other vaccine.

Vaccinated calves do not spread infection to unvaccinated ones. The cost is 90c per dose. Even though a lower price vaccine is available, you will be more certain with the best.

Big 7 Grid Teams Start Rough Work

KANSAS CITY (AP)— The rough work is starting early on Big Seven conference football practice fields.

The Nebraska Cornhuskers have already scrimmaged and will take their first test under game conditions Saturday.

Missouri and Kansas State planned hard-contact work Wednesday, including a taste of scrimmage.

Two K State players — center August Keller and halfback Veryl Switzer—suffered slight injuries in Tuesday's workout.

At Missouri coach Don Faurot tried out a No. 1 offensive backfield composed of Gabby Hook at quarter, Nick Carras and Jack Fox, halfbacks and Bill Rowekamp, fullback. Rowekamp came to Missouri from West Point last year.

One of Nebraska's players got a pat on the back from coach Bill Glassford. Glassford said Johnny Bordogna, a junior, showed vast improvement in both his passing and quarterbacking.

The Oklahoma backs concentrated on ball handling in an effort to improve their timing and avoid fumbling. The Sooner squad includes seven players who re-entered school after service with the 45th division.

At Iowa State, coach Abe Stuber looked over his 53-man squad for a kicker. Bob Clendening, his top kicker, is recuperating from an appendectomy and won't work out for another week. Two other veterans aren't expected to show up until Sept. 10. Quarterback Dick Mann and center Jim Rawley both are attending reserve officers summer camps.

Five conference schools play their opening games Sept. 20. Oklahoma and Colorado start a week later.

Knowing When Twilight Comes Is Vital In Tennis Tourney

FOREST HILLS, N. Y. (AP)—The length of time between sunset and pitch darkness doesn't mean a great deal to the average person and there is no reason that it should. However, if you are thinking of running a tennis tournament it is a very good thing to know.

If there is going to be a really nasty incident in the course of a tournament, chances are high that it will arise when some player who is ahead in the deciding set wants to keep on playing and his opponent claims he no longer can see to hit the ball. The decision always is a tricky one for the referee, but he can at least make an intelligent stab at the right answer if he knows his twilight.

There is a man here, a chipper retired naval engineer named Edward O. Cutler, who can take up a few tools and tell you at exactly what minute the sun will go down at any spot in the world on any given day in the year. Also he can tell you when it will become necessary to light the lamps.

Every year before the national championships begin, he sits down and draws up a chart showing precisely what the light conditions will be in the West Side Tennis Club Stadium minute by minute for the 10 days of play.

With his trusty chart at hand the official referee knows for example that the sun will duck behind the metropolitan hills today at exactly 6:24. That at 6:32 it will be necessary to halt play and that at 6:52 it will be as dark as the inside of a mule's stomach.

Thus armed, the referee is able to plan ahead. When things threaten to get sticky in an important match he simply strolls out stiff legged and advises the umpire when to call it off right on the dot. This takes the umpire off the spot and forestalls a lot of arguments.

Cutler has been providing the chart as a hobby ever since 1939, when there was the granddaddy of a row about playing the final set of a match between Frank Guernsey of this country and Ferenc Puncec of Yugoslavia. The system's only weakness, as Cutler readily admits, is that all bets are off on a cloudy day.

Blackwell's First Game A Yank Win

By JOE REICHLER
AP Sports Writer

The New York Yankees received a quick dividend on their $40,000 investment in Ewell Blackwell.

Five days after the purchase of the former National League Star from the Cincinnati Reds, the Yankees Tuesday night sent Blackwell to the mound against the Boston Red Sox. The long, lean righthander responded with a scoreless five-inning performance to rack up his first American League triumph.

Blackie was not the overpowering pitcher he had been in his days as a big winner with the Reds, but he looked quite capable before bowing out for a pinch hitter. He permitted four singles, fanned four and walked three before retiring because of weariness and the humidity.

It was in the fifth, however, when the Yankees ganged up on Boston starter Sid Hudson for all their runs to win the nightcap, 4-0, after rookie Tommy Gorman had hurled an eight-hit 5-0 shutout over the Red Sox in the afternoon portion of the day-night doubleheader.

The two triumphs ran the Yankees' winning streak to five and increased their first-place margin over the idle Cleveland Indians to 3½ games.

Brooklyn's Dodgers, the National League leaders, dropped a pair to Philadelphia's Phillies, 8-2 and 9-3, and were lucky to get out of the City of Brotherly Love in one piece. Two dozen Philadelphia hits plus splendid pitching by righthanders Robin Roberts and Karl Drews cut the Dodgers' first-place lead over the idle New York Giants to eight games.

Chicago's White Sox climbed into fourth place, vanishing the Detroit Tigers twice, 6-5 and 7-4. Rocco Krsnich's two-run triple in the ninth won the opener. Marv Grissom won his 11th in the nightcap.

Washington's Senators, although held to three hits in each game, won both ends of a twi-night win bill from Philadelphia, 3-2 in 10 innings and 5-0, to dump the Athletics into fifth place, only a half game in front of the Nats.

Mike Fornieles, the 20-year-old Cuban righthander, pitched a one-hit shutout in his major league debut for Washington. A second-inning single by catcher Joe Astroth prevented the youngster from becoming the first pitcher in modern times to pitch a no-hitter in his first big league game.

Blackwell received credit for a shutout victory although he needed help from another National League castoff, Johnny Sain. The ex-Boston Braves' righthander permitted only one hit in the last four innings.

Miner Killed on First Shift After Memorial

DU QUOIN, Ill. (AP)—A Du Quoin miner was killed on his first shift after the memorial holiday declared by John L. Lewis.

He was Roman Waller, 50, helper on a coal loading machine at the Peabody Coal Company's Majestic Mine.

In traditional mourning, his 450 fellow United Mine Workers quit work. Waller was buried under a rib of coal that popped loose as he was passing by.

Veeck Defends Actions That Halted Game

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Owner Bill Veeck of the St. Louis Browns, commenting on the Cleveland protest over a rain-shortened game here Labor Day that could cost the Indians the pennant, says he has nothing to cover up except a wet playing field.

The Browns won the second half of the doubleheader 2-1 when rain interrupted the game for a second time and the umpires called the contest.

The Indians had taken a 4-2 lead with three runs in the sixth but the Browns hadn't finished their turn at bat in the inning, and the score reverted to the fifth. Thus the second-place Indians dropped a half game further behind the league-leading New York Yankees.

Manager Al Lopez of Cleveland angrily protested to league headquarters that the patched canvas used to cover the field was in disgraceful condition and that the ground crew failed to obey the umpires and made no effort to cover the field the second time it rained.

The St. Louis owner said his ground crew set a new record of seven minutes in covering the field the first time it rained. The field was too far gone when the second downpour came, Veeck said, chiefly because so much of the water ran off the canvas when it was taken up.

Veeck said he telephoned Hank Greenberg, general manager of the Indians, yesterday and must have wanted to ask him something but can't recall what it was. Veeck said Greenberg "really doesn't believe" Veeck delayed the ground crew in covering the field, as Lopez charged.

The Brownie owner said he asked Greenberg whether he would give the Browns a new tarpaulin if they went to Cleveland. Veeck didn't report Greenberg's reply, but said all Greenberg wanted to talk about was rain, canvas, and low blows from fate and other quarters.

Veeck quoted Greenberg as saying: "You have supplied the spark that will keep us going."

"With the positions reversed," Veeck admitted, "I, too, would be unhappy."

Bums Are Best Fielding Club, Individuals

NEW YORK (AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers, seeking to break the major league club fielding record, are also well represented among the individual fielding leaders today.

The pennant-bound Brooks, who boast a .984 defensive mark, contribute third baseman Billy Cox, shortstop Pee Wee Reese, catcher Roy Campanella and outfielders Carl Furillo and Andy Pafko to the National League's list of top men.

If the Dodgers continue their present pace they will eclipse the existing team record of .983, established by the Cleveland Indians in 1947 and again in 1949.

Cox heads the third sackers with a .982 average. Willie Jones of the Philadelphia Phillies is second with a .974 slate.

Reese is deadlocked for the shortstop lead with Boston's Johnny Logan at .975.

Campanella holds a slight edge over Del Rice of St. Louis. The burly Negro catcher shows a .995 mark to Rice's .994.

Along with Sid Gordon of Boston, Furillo and Pafko rate as the cream of the National League flychasers. Gordon's .996 average is only one point better than that compiled by the dodger outfielders.

A pair of Cincinnati players, Ted Kluszewski and Grady Hatton, round out the National League's defensive pace-setters. Kluszewski, with a .994 slate, heads the first baseman and Hatton, a converted third baseman, tops the second sackers at .990.

In the American League, the highlight is Clint Courtney's sparkling .998 mark. The St. Louis Browns' catcher shows only one miscue in 455 chances.

Johnny Lipon of Boston is the front-runner among the shortstops at .980.

New York's Gil McDougald, with 10 bobbles out of 349, is the leader among the third baseman with a .971 average.

Other top men defensively are outfielder Gene Woodling of New York, .995; first baseman Mickey Vernon, Washington and Detroit's Walt Dropo with .993 each, and second sackers Nellie Fox, Chicago, and Bobby Young, St. Louis, deadlocked at .986.

Tent City for Plow-Politics Contests Opens for Business

KASSON - DODGE CENTER, Minn. (AP)— "Open for business" signs blossomed today around the huge circus-like tent city erected for the combined plowing-political contests coming to this South Central Minnesota farming area Saturday.

"Now serving sandwiches and hot lunches," say the signs in front of many of the canvas eateries. They were among the first concessions to get in place for the National and Minnesota State Plowing Contests Friday and Saturday.

Operators of the establishments are mostly church groups. Their big business will come Saturday, when crowds estimated at up to 150,000 persons are expected to converge at "Plowville" to hear the next president of the United States.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Republican candidate for president, will speak at noon. Gov. Adlai Stevenson, the Democratic nominee, will mount the same stand four hours later.

In between and probably during the speeches, farmers on tractors will exhibit their plowing prowness before the trained eyes of judges.

Concessionnaires found they wouldn't have to wait until Saturday to do good business. There are a lot of hungry men already at Plowville. In fact, a veritable army of Carpenters are flooring tents and building restrooms. Power company workers are setting poles and stringing miles of lines. Farm implement men are hauling machines and setting up exhibits. Communications crews are installing switchboards, telephone booths, and all types of communication lines.

Scores of tents already are in place, and many more will go up. Long rows of shiny tractors are lined up for the farmers who'll compete in the plowing competition.

An tense onlooker has been Alf Larson, a Kasson farmer. Larson recalls it was he who last year invited the National Association of Soil Conservation Districts to hold their 1952 contests in Minnesota.

"I'm amazed by all this," he said as the town of tents and tractors grew.

Chairman of the reception committee for the big day, Lareon thinks the appearance of Eisenhower and Stevenson will draw many persons more interested in politics than farming.

"A little knowledge of soil conservation should rub off onto them," he said. Larson thinks also farmers who come mainly to watch the plowing are bound to get more interest in politics.

The first synthetic yarn was spun in the United States in 1910.

Russia Visitor Doubts Soviets Have A-Bomb

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

CHICAGO (AP)—"I don't believe Russia has one single atom bomb," Carlton S. Proctor, prominent New York engineer who has worked in Russia, declared today.

"I think every one of the atomic explosions in Russia was just a premature explosion, in an effort to produce a bomb."

Proctor is president of the American Society of Civil Engineers, one of 64 engineering societies celebrating a Centennial of Engineering opening here today.

He gave his views on Russia during an interview telling of U. S. engineers' vast accomplishments in the last 100 years.

(The White House has announced three atomic explosions in Russia, referring to the second one as "another atomic bomb," without amplifying further. Other sources have estimated Russia has a stockpile of 100 or many more A-bombs by now.)

Proctor declares it takes teamwork and co-operation to make an A-bomb work, and that Russians don't trust each other.

Such co-operation, he said, "is essentially impossible in Russia or any other totalitarian state. There is no possibility of one man trusting another and integrating his efforts with any other man."

"There is no reward for co-operation. The only reward is for exposing someone, even in your own family. Any combination of effort comes under suspicion as a combination against the dictatorship."

In 1930, Proctor worked on building Russia's second largest dam, at Svirstroy east of Leningrad. In World War II he was an Army engineer, a colonel, building the Persian corridor road from the Indian ocean to funnel supplies to Russia.

"The Russians have no confidence in their own engineers," he said, "and I have never met a Russian engineer who was a Communist who was any good."

Soviet jet planes are good, "but the Russians got the practical end of how to build them from Germans whom they took over."

"The Russians have brilliant physicists and mathematicians, brilliant purely in theory. In jet propulsion, they are probably ahead of us in theory. But theory alone doesn't produce an A-bomb, or an army, or morale.

"We've been bluffed and fooled into thinking the Russians have produced more than they have."

Soviet-Chinese Unity Stressed Amid Threats

MOSCOW (AP)—Red China's leader Mao Tze-tung and Soviet Prime Minister Joseph Stalin emphasized Russian - Chinese unity in the face of "threats of new aggression in the Far East" as they exchanged greetings on the seventh anniversary of the World War II victory over Japan.

The lengthy telegrams sent by the leaders of the two huge Communist nations were published on the front page of the Communist party newspaper Pravda today. Both Stalin and Mao stressed that Soviet -Chinese friendship is "uncrushable."

Pravda in a lead editorial charged that Japanese reserve police troops are fighting in Korea.

In his message to Stalin, Mao declared:

"Now, when again Japanese militarism is being revived, when the aggressive forces of Japan again are lifting their heads, the uncrushable friendship and alliance between China and the Soviet Union are a firm guarantee of the prevention of a repetition of aggression from the side of Japan or any other state which should unite with Japan in acts of aggression, a firm guarantee of the maintenance of peace in the East and in the whole world."

Stalin said in reply:

"The great friendship between the Soviet Union and the Chinese Peoples' Republic is a reliable guarantee against the threat of new aggression, a powerful pillar of peace in the Far East and the whole world."

Stalin asked Mao to accept the congratulations of the Soviet people and the Soviet Army. He ended by hailing the Chinese Peoples' Liberation Army and the "inviolable friendship" between the Chinese Peoples' Republic and the Soviet Union.

In its editorial Pravda said the American "policy of threatening" is to no avail in the face of Soviet-Chinese unity, which it described as growing and strengthening.

Point 4 Is Simple Weapon Against Communism

By Drew Pearson

(Copyright, 1951, By The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

(Note to Editors: While Drew Pearson is on a brief vacation, the Washington Merry-Go-Round is being written by several distinguished guest columnists, today's being Stanley Andrews, technical cooperation administrator in the Department of State.

WASHINGTON — There are many weapons which the Free World can use to fight Communist aggression — military, political and economic weapons. But I believe history may well demonstrate that the most effective weapon we have in the struggle against Communism is the Point 4 program.

Like most things of fundamental greatness Point 4 is very simple. It helps people to help themselves —by teaching and sharing America's scientific knowledge and technical skills with the peoples of the under-developed areas of the world.

Point 4 is not a product of our defense effort and it is not a substitute for defense, but Point 4 is no less a source of strength for the Free World.

Some of the countries with which the U. S. is cooperating through the Point 4 program lie directly in the path of Soviet expansion. In most of these underdeveloped areas the threat of Communism is not a military threat, and it cannot be met with military measures.

Guns are no defense against poverty, ignorance and unrest. In the underdeveloped areas the only sure defense against the spread of Communism and other forms of tyranny is a powerful, concentrated attack on disease and hunger and their evil consequences.

People-to-People Program

Point 4 is a new kind of diplomacy. Point 4 diplomats are dungaree and blue jeans diplomats —teachers, health officers, engineers, farm demonstration agents who work directly with the people in the villages and on the farms.

Point 4 is a people-to-people program. U. S. technicians working with technicians of other countries are not concerned with political problems. In the midst of anti-U. S. disturbances in Iran, American and Iranian technicians continued to work side by side, trying to do a job that means more food, clean water, lower infant mortality, fewer deaths of mothers in childbirth.

Our work with the peoples of the Point 4 countries is very similar, in fact, to your own people-to-people efforts. Drew Pearson — the Friendship Train, the Tide of Toys, and the letter-writing campaign between the people of Italian descent in the United States and their relatives in Italy which helped swing the 1947 Italian elections for democracy.

Point 4 has been called idealistic. If Point 4 is idealism, it is hard-headed, practical idealism. There are sound economic reasons behind Point 4. Rising national income, more productive agriculture and greater industrial activity make other nations better customers for United States' products and commodities. They create markets for American businessmen and jobs for American workers.

Beyond self-interest, the motives for Point 4 are embedded deeply in our American democratic tradition.

The peoples of the underdeveloped areas of the world — in Asia, Africa, the Middle East, Latin America — are awakening after centuries of impotence and subjection to outside domination. In the 18th century they were largely passed over by the industrial revolution and the political revolutions of France and America. Even the most commonplace measures we take our health and sanitation are unknown to millions of them. Hundreds of millions cannot read or write and have never known the use of the ballot.

The billion human souls in these underdeveloped areas are waking up to the potentialities of life in the 20th century. Many of them have recently gained national independence. They are learning that hunger, disease and ignorance need not be their everlasting heritage.

It is in the tradition and the history of America that we help them. Point 4 is the vehicle on which scientific knowledge, technical inventions and material progress become traveling companions with our ideals, our hopes and aspirations for achieving real brotherhood among men.

Accomplishments of Program

What has Point 4 accomplished? More than 1,000 TCA technicians are overseas working with some 20,000 nationals in 35 countries. The native "counterparts" of our Point 4 workers are being taught the skills and knowledge of American technicians. For the basic principle of Point 4 is to train the peoples of the participating countries so that each country can take over its own programs.

For example, the Etawah agricultural project in India is now run entirely by Indians. In Liberia, Frank Pinder, an extension agent from Florida, has helped the Liberian farmers produce a cash crop by providing 24 cocoa seeds for two cents. Point 4 workers have reduced crop losses in Lebanon by showing the Lebanese citrus farmers modern ways of picking, shipping and marketing their crops. In Ecuador, Colombia and other Latin American countries health workers have almost eliminated the dread tropical disease Yaws. A new disease-resistant rubber tree has been developed in Latin America. Malaria is being brought under control in the Near East.

Perhaps I should close this guest column with a prediction on "the shape of things to come." I am willing to predict that the American people and the peoples of the Free World will turn more and more in the years to come to the Point 4 principle, not only as a potent weapon against Communism, but because technical assistance is the "diplomacy of the future." Even the Russians are imitating Point 4 while their propaganda attacks it.

And one more ediction:

Sawyer, the famed cartoon-strip character who is helping fight the locust plague in Iran will trap the blonde Russian agent, kill the locusts, and discover uranium in Southern Asia.

Odds and Ends By News Staff

One day a group of neighborhood children were playing and Pennyle, who had some candy, passed it around.

Three-year-old Judy took a piece and in some way got choked on it. Judy's brother, Larry, who is almost eight, and Pennye, eight, saw that something had to be done—the tiny girl was getting red in the face and they weren't sure what to do for her.

Judy's mother would know what to do, but the home was a whole block away. And so, Larry and Pennye picked up the little choking girl and carried her the block to her mother who did know what to do—otherwise the story would have ended differently—Larry's little sister would have choked to death.—H.L.

I SLAMMED my palm down on the table, and jumped up. "If you came here to be insulting, you can leave now. Mission accomplished, as we used to say in the Air Force. I have a class down the hall, and I should be getting back. Saturday's my busy day."

She rose, and put a red wool scarf, of the type I believe is known as a fascinator, over her head. She tied the ends under that knobby white chin.

"Well, I didn't come here to be insulting, but if I was, then good! You got nerve, butting into my private life, telling my husband he's got brains, and he's gonna get somewheres some day. He had to lie about his education to get a job with Acme Truck, and he won't never be able to get into anything else. That's awright, there's plenty money in trucking. If only he don't waste his life setting aroun' with these books you been shoving at him."

"Look," I said, trying to speak quietly, "you must not be feeling well today. Go back to the bar where you came from and have a couple more drinks. I'll just forget you came—I'll never mention it to David. And I don't think you will either, because I think you'll be ashamed of it tomorrow morning."

She picked up her coat and flung it over one arm. "That's what you think," she said. "I just had one little nip before I come here, to give me the backbone to tell you off. And I'm telling you again. I got friends, you know. I could send somebody aroun' that wouldn't just talk. This friend of mine can be pretty tough. You just take my advice now, bub, and you'll stay outta trouble."

With this parting threat she left.

TIME barreled along after that, until all of a sudden Christmas was at our throats. I made Christmas cards, mailed gifts.

Then one afternoon a feeling akin to panic struck me as a clicked the door shut and sat down to look at my mail. Christmas Eve. This was to have been Kathy's and my first Christmas in our own house.

There was a letter in her handwriting. The envelope bore a New York postmark but no return address. Inside was a block print, which I recognized as her work, of a deer in the snow. And a printed signature—Kathleen Valois.

I prowled and pounced around the narrow rooms, hating her. Finally I threw on my stormcoat and boots and slammed out of the apartment.

I passed a vacant lot where a man was selling Christmas trees, and for lack of anything else to do I bought a scrawny, lopsided little spruce.

Cut down considerably and braced in a bucket, the tree suddenly took on a satisfyingly Christmassy shape. I tied Christmas cards to the branches with tinsel ribbon, taped more Christmas cards over the bucket, and stacked my presents under the tree.

As I undressed for bed, I loitered near the tree and examined cards. Abruptly, it struck me how many of them had pictures of tiny children or family groups.

People my age. People I'd gone to school with, people I'd known in the service. Here I was, 29, and I . . . The years stretched before me, the years of prissy bachelorhood.

My head was pounding dully. I took two aspirins and went to bed at 9:30. As soon as I was down, seemed like I was more wide awake than I had been all day.

Suddenly the buzzer rang, with a loud, strident rasp that went crashing through the silent apartment. I leaped upright in bed, the hair on the back of my neck prickling my scalp.

I ran to push the button that released the lock downstairs. Then I darted back to the bedroom and threw on my bathrobe, and waited on the landing, with a strange mixture of premonition and doubt, listening as footsteps slowly came nearer.

Finally the steps rounded the last curve, and there stood David, looking up at me from the bottom of the flight of stairs to the fourth floor. He had a cardboard carton tied with rope in one hand, and a big greasy brown-paper package in the other.

"Hello," he called in a low voice. "May I come up for awhile?" I thought he swayed a little.

"But certainly! Come on in! Here, I'll help you."

I hurried down the stairs and took one of the bundles.

"That's for you," said David, as he panted upwards. "I won it in a raffle. First time I ever won anything. A 25-pound turkey. I had it stuffed already."

"Swell! Hope the oven's big enough."

• • •

UNEASILY, I followed him into the living room. I went out to the kitchen and set the turkey down in the sink, and when I came back he had put down his heavy carton and stood in the middle of the floor, sagging forward and looking dazed.

"Your coat is wet through!" I exclaimed. "Even your hair is dripping! Where in the world have you been?"

He didn't answer, but sat abruptly on the couch as though his knees had given way. I put his coat on a hangar and hung it on the shower rod in the bathroom. "Dry your hair on this," I said, handing him a thick turkish towel.

He rubbed his head abstractly. "I feel like a heel, waking you this way," he began.

"Oh, I wasn't asleep. Fact is, I was having a bad time. Glad you came. Why don't you just spend the night?"

"Sure you won't mind? I haven't any place else to go. I've even got all my clothes in that box." He gestured tiredly with one raw, cold-reddened hand.

IX

THIS ominous statement from David Carlson made me realize he was in serious trouble, and to give him time to calm down, I said, "I'll unpack your clothes and hang them up then. They're probably damp too."

I knelt and untied the rope. Inside, on top of his clothes, was a camera, broken into several pieces. Amazed, I lifted it out of the box. "Did you know this was broken?"

"Yes, I know," he said.

He rose agitatedly then, and paced back and forth, as though gathering himself to tell me what had happened. But instead he stopped in front of the Renoir Little Girl, and stared at it for a long time. Presently I realized he had begun to cry, silently, his heavy shoulders shaking, the tears spreading over his weather-roughened cheeks.

I stood up and touched him on the elbow. "Go sit down," I said "I'll get you something."

He stumbled over to the couch and sat down and buried his face in the towel. I poured two fingers of Scotch into a glass, put ice water in another glass, and set them on the coffee table in front of him. Then I took his clothes into the bedroom to hang them up, taking as much time as I could doing it.

When I came back into the living room, Dave had quieted somewhat, and I handed him a cigaret. His hands trembled so that he could not light it, so I lit one for him and put it in his mouth. His breath came in sobs and gulps like a child who has held in for a long time.

Finally, out of an unendurable curiosity, I asked cautiously, "What has happened?"

"She broke my camera!" he burst out. "She smashed it all to bits on the floor, right in front of my eyes, and she laughed. And her pal Bobo was there, and they were both cockeyed drunk, and the people downstairs threatened to call the police. Christmas Eve too! And me there with this turkey and waiting for her to come home. So I've left her, for good. And she just laughed, and went out with that guy for more beer. I could—I could kill her!" And he broke down again, sobbing incoherent words into the towel.

"Drink your Scotch," I reminded. "You haven't touched it."

HE drank it hastily, and the water too. Then a reaction set in, and he began to shiver violently, his teeth chattering. I made him put on my baggy tweed smoking jacket.

"I'll build a fire," I offered. "And you can tell me about it if you wish. Go back to the beginning."

"Well, you see," he began, "I won the raffle down at work. This big turkey, like I told you. I didn't find out until this morning that I had the lucky number, and I got all steamed up, because me and Ida has never had Christmas at home. We always went over to her folks' house. And I thought this time we'd have our own turkey. So on the way home—I got off work early, 2 o'clock it was—I stopped at Pinay's and had it stuffed. Got some vegetables and stuff, and a pumpkin pie at the bakery. And I phoned her folks we weren't coming over tomorrow. When I got home, she wasn't there. So I figured I'd surprise her. I put all the stuff away and cleaned up the apartment some. And there was Christmas carols on the radio, and it was snowin', and I felt like—aw, you know how a guy feels on Christmas."

He paused, then said, "I guess I better go ahead and tell you everything. You wouldn't tell anybody about this, would you?"

"No. It's nobody else's business."

"Well, the worst part is that Ida's been goin' around with this guy named Bobo. He tends bar at this place where she hangs out. She's been with him every night for months, practically, and gets in late, and sometimes she'll be so tight she goes to bed with her clothes on. When I raise Cain about it, she fights right back, and tells me he treats her like a woman wants to be treated. That makes me mad. He must be 40 if he's a day, been divorced twice over, and he used to be a fighter —middleweight. His face is all scarred, and he's got a big beer belly, and whiskers so thick his jaws look blue. You know what I mean."

"How long has all this been going on?" I asked.

"Oh, eight or nine months. She began fooling around at that joint way last winter, and she stays every night till the place closes. Couple times I got so mad I left and rented a room at the Y, and stayed a night or two, thinking maybe she'd come to her senses."

"Isn't all this pretty expensive?" I put in.

"That's just it! She keeps me broke. Once I give her money to pay the gas bill she spent it on beer, and the company turned off the gas. I never know what she'll do."

I PUT more wood on the fire. "I should think," I remarked "that you'd probably be driven to drink too, with all that going on."

He slapped at the air fiercely. "Not me. Not after I seen what it done—what it did—to my pop. I swore I'd never let drink get me like it did him. You oughta see him now. He's—well, he can't hardly talk any more."

"Let's get back to tonight," I interposed hastily.

"Oh. Well, it seems Marty's closed for the day and so Ida and Bobo been together all afternoon. When they come in I was just finishing cleaning the sink, and they was—they were—both pretty high. This Bobo lays down on the couch and says, 'Let's all have a beer.' And I guess it was the sight of him laying there like it was his own house that got me."

68 Pettis Co. Cancer Deaths During 1951

Cancer deaths in Missouri climbed to an all-high of 6,466 in 1951 and for the third successive year more men than women lost their lives to the disease.

There were 68 cancer deaths in Pettis County included in this tragic list.

The vital statistics report of the State Division of Health, just released to the Missouri Division of the American Cancer Society, shows 3,308 male and 3,158 female deaths from cancer in the state last year. This is an increase of 99 cancer deaths since the 1950 report.

Harry M. Dawdy, executive vice president of the Division, pointed out that along with the larger amount of men the total number of cancer deaths for the state includes many children and young people.

"There were 106 boys and girls under 20 years of age who died of cancer in 1951; 34 of these under 5 years old," he said and "61 young adults between the ages of 20 and 30.

"In the most productive years 1,981 men and women between 30 and 60 years old died of cancer. These were the years when many of them were raising and supporting families," he said. "This age group accounts for more than a third of last year's cancer deaths in Missouri.

"In the older group, from 60 years of age and on, there were 4,318 deaths from cancer."

Optimists Told Many Deaths Due to Cancer

J. W. Ficklin, Columbia, district chairman of the Missouri division of the American Cancer Society, was the principal speaker at the Tuesday noon luncheon of the Optimist Club. Immediately following the luncheon Charles Hanna, president, turned the program over to Lee Deason, program chairman, who in turn introduced Mr. Ficklin.

The speaker stated that in Pettis County alone 57 persons died from cancer in 1950 as against a figure of 68 for 1951. "Cancer stands today", stated the speaker," as our greatest killer, with a possibility that some 22,000,000 Americans now living will die of cancer." The speaker went on, "of 220,000 Americans who died of cancer last year, one-half of that number need not have died."

Ficklin outlined the fact that it is the purpose of the American Cancer Society to educate, with every means at hand, the American public to the dangers of cancer, hoping that once aroused they will be examined at the first danger signal, and possibly catch the disease in time.

Mr. Ficklin also stated that the cancer hospital at Columbia, which is for research purposes, and having as patients those who cannot afford treatment, constitutes a training school for physicians, in which they can learn how to diagnose and treat cancer. Pettis County had 24 patients treated in this hospital in 1950, and 42 patients treated there last year. Last year at the hospital, 7813 treatments were given and 1018 operations were performed. At present the waiting period for new patients desiring admittance is 15 days, as against an earlier waiting period of 27 days. "Time is of the essence," stated the speaker in closing, "and if you have something wrong with you don't delay—see your doctor today."

Square Dancers Invited to Squares At MU-SMU Grid Game

The Foot 'n' Fiddle Club held its first dance of the fall season Tuesday night at the Beaman Community Hall with most of the members attending.

Special guests of the evening were Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Ficklin and Mr. and Mrs. James Ewing of Columbia and Judge Edgar M. Eagan of Jefferson City.

Judge Eagan called the dances.

Mr. Ficken invited the Sedalia Foot 'n' Fiddle Club members to participate in the square dance which will be held between the halves of the Southern Methodist University-Missouri University football game on Oct. 11. There will be 150 squares taking part in the dance. Mr. Ficken is in charge of the preparation for this event.

City Council

Price Alexander, Colored Civic Council.

Mrs. Charles Poynter, president PTA Council.

Arthur Morgan, certified public accountant.

Mrs. Shirley Wagner, public accountant.

These people should study and analyze the existing problems and report their findings and recommendations to the City Council.

I further propose that in order not to lose any time on the matter, the first meeting of this committee and the owners of the Sedalia Bus Company be held in the City Council Chamber at 7:30 p. m. Friday, Sept. 5th.

Mayor Studer then queried each councilman for his ideas and what the council had to offer. Each councilman made a few remarks, all of which conformed with the thought in mind that something had to be done and suggested an accountant be placed on the committee proposed by the mayor.

Members of the Council said they did not appreciate the fact the bus owners had not notified Mayor Studer or the Council prior to their making such a decision as to curtail the service.

Chester Wolfe, city counselor, was called upon to explain the action that could be taken. Mr. Wolfe explained, in accordance with the ordinance governing the franchise, that no action could be taken against the bus owners until after 60 days from the date the company had been notified the franchise had been violated.

Councilmen Give Opinions

Mayor Studer then followed the recommendation of the Council members for putting an accountant on the committee and named Mrs. Shirley Wagner and Arthur Morgan as members.

Recess by Council

During the ensuing discussion audience members were called upon for their ideas. After the subject had been bounced around, Mayor Herb Studer called for a 15-minute recess. At this time the Council members retired to the Mayor's office to discuss the proposal. Mayor Studer did not sit in on this meeting, as he said he wanted the Council to decide on the proposal without him.

When the councilmen returned to the chamber, Elmer Sumners, president pro-tem, read a statement whereby the majority of the council members endorsed the plan of the Mayor, but recommended the committee would hold hearings and meetings at such times the members of the council could attend. They also recommended the committee make a report to the council before the next regular council meeting which will be Monday night, Sept. 15.

As the councilmen took their seats after the recess, the roll call of the group was made. Councilman Woody Garrison, incorrectly understanding that the call was for a vote on the proposal, voted "no." He was informed it was the usual roll call of attendance and said "here."

Councilman T. J. McMillin, this morning stated he wanted it known he voted "no" on the proposal in the meeting held during the recess. "There were two 'no' votes," he said, "in the meeting."

Howard Not Present

Marvin Howard was not present in the meeting. It was brought out by Councilman Carlton Kelley of the Fourth Ward it had been recommended at the meeting of Aug. 18 Mr. Howard appear before the council at Tuesday's meeting. Chester Wolfe, city counsellor, reported a letter had been written to Howard to that effect.

Those in the audience who spoke during the discussion were all in accord that bus service was needed in Sedalia at night, Sundays and holidays. Several who talked were rather bitter, others were in a more cooperative mood in wanting something worked out for the benefit of all.

Speaking were: Jack L. Lobaugh, 1020 South Kentucky, a shop man; Rev. Edward R. Sims, 111 East Broadway, rector of the Calvary Episcopal Church; Fred Ferguson, 117 East Jefferson, an undertaker; Frank L. Hanigan, 505 East Fourth speaking in behalf of the First Methodist Church; Rev. Warren Neal, 209 West Broadway, pastor of the Broadway Presbyterian Church; James L. Byrd Staying Out of Fight

WINCHESTER, Va. (AP)—Regardless of how he feels about the presidential election, Sen. Harry F. Byrd (D-Va) apparently has no intention of taking part in any third party movement.

There hasn't been any word so far on the presidential choice of the senior Virginia senator, a foe of the Truman administration and a Virginia delegate to the Democratic National Convention.

Most observers believe Byrd will maintain his strict silence until after the November election without coming out for either the Democratic nominee, Adlai Stevenson, or the Republican candidate, Dwight D. Eisenhower.

But yesterday Byrd did try to spike a movement by the newly formed Constitution party to wage a campaign for electoral votes for him as a vice presidential running mate to Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

A spokesman said Byrd had wired Bard A. Logan, Constitution party convention chairman in Texas, to have his name taken off the ballot there. The action came, the spokesman said, after Byrd was informed that a MacArthur-Byrd ticket had been filed in Texas.

It was the first reaction from Byrd regarding the new party which was formed over the week end in Philadelphia. He had said previously only that he had "no contact with the group."

At the same time, the spokesman indicated today that Byrd also will seek to stop a move to have his name placed on the Virginia ballot as a running mate to MacArthur on a ticket sponsored by the America First party.

Council Passes Several New Ordinances at Tuesday Session

(By D. Kelly Scruton)

Sedalia's City Council conducted one of its longest meetings in years, Tuesday night, when routine business was transacted along with discussing the problems of the Sedalia Bus Co., curtailing service.

Two ordinances accepting improvement work done and materials furnished by the James W. Atkinson Construction Co., one for Sewer District 83, the other for District 89, were passed.

An ordinance accepting the work and materials furnished on resurfacing certain streets in Sedalia by the W. J. Menefee Construction Co., was approved.

Four ordinances providing for construction of District Sewers were passed. They were for Districts 84, 85, 86 and 87.

Two ordinances providing for curb and guttering and bringing streets to the proper grade were also passed. One was for curb and guttering on East Seventh from the east curb line of Emmett to the west curb line of Babcock on both sides of the street; the other was for curb and guttering on both sides of the street from the west curb line of Beacon to the State Fair Boulevard.

Another ordinance was given final passage for the construction of a four foot sidewalk on the east side of Quincy from 16th to 18th with the exception of 138.7 feet where sidewalks have already been provided.

The Council passed a resolution to authorize the mayor, city clerk and finance committee to borrow $6,000 for two years at 2-per cent per annum from the Union Savings Bank to pay for a new street sweeping machine.

James W. Atkinson Construction Co., was awarded a contract to build a sewer in District 91, which is located from Moniteau to Ohio avenue north to Morgan. The bid was $2,960, $35 lower than the engineer's estimate which was $2,-659.

Bonds Were Burned

Elmer Sumners, chairman of the finance committee, and Clyde Swafford, a member, burned 14 interest coupons on Armory bonds totaling $140; nine coupons on Hospital No. 2 bonds, amounting to $90; and five coupons on Public sewer bonds amounting to $50.

Under special committee reports, Swafford reported his committee, which was appointed to investigate a streilizer for Hospital No. 2 has found that it is not necessary at this time. Swafford reported the cost was prohibitive and that at the present time the accommodations of the sterilizer at the Bothwell Hospital could also be used by Hospital No. 2.

To Trade Patrol Cars

Dr. Ira M. White, police committee, reported one of the old patrol cars had been wrecked fair week in a collision with a Sedalia Bus and it would be cheaper to trade the car in on a new one than having the old one repaired, adding the upkeep from now until next year would be a great expense. The Council approved trading the car to the W. A. Smith Motor Co., for a new Ford at the cost of $395. The estimate cost to repair and put the car in first class running condition was $498.

Reports of the various city officers were read and given approval by the council.

Under new business Councilman Carlton Kelley read a petition asking for street lights in the 1500 and 1700 block on West 11th. He also called attention to the Council the old street sweeper was not traded in on the new one and with a small expenditure on the old machine could be repaired and would be useful for alley work.

Swafford read two petitions asking permission for the property owners at 1914 West Fifth to enter the manhole sewer in that area and for George Bagby to permit his connecting with the manhole sewer at 11th and Limit.

Jail Needs Repair

Councilman J. T. McMillin reported a serious condition exists at the city jail building. A large beam across the ceiling to one wall was hanging due to the fact the wall was falling out. He was given permission for the committee to look into the matter and make necessary repairs.

Councilman Harry Berry reported on a condition at Main and Prospect, in front of the Freese and Rissler Dairy, where water stood on the sidewalk and gravel washed from their drive out onto the sidewalk. The matter was referred to the street and alley committee to take up with the Twelve Mile Road District, in connection with water which also stands in the street which is under the jurisdiction of the Road District.

Dr. White asked the City Engineer be instructed to place caution signs on Broadway, warning a street signal was in operation at Broadway and Engineer. The signs are to be located 300 feet each way from Engineer.

Aide For Engineer

Councilman Kelley reported City Engineer James J. Collins has been extremely busy and that it is necessary to have another man in the engineer's office to assist in surveying and drafting of sewer districts. The council voted to give Mayor Studer permission to secure additional help for Engineer Collins.

He also called attention to the taxi cabs parking in meter spaces on Lamine and said the city should have better cooperation on the part of the taxi people in stopping such practice. He pointed out the meter officers and police couldn't stand around all day watching these violations and suggested something be done.

Chief of Police Neighbors explained the meter men were supposed to handle the situation, but they could not be in this location all the time. However, he would instruct the meter men to be more careful in watching for these violations.

Councilman Woody Garrison then called attention to the continued double parking on Lamine by taxi cabs and pointed out this is a very bad hazard.

Patrol Area for Violations

Mayor Studer then instructed the Chief of Police to have the patrol cars drive around that area more often and arrest any violators who insist in violating the double parking and overtime parking laws.

Fred Ferguson asked the Council for relief for property owners in Sewer District 78. He explained that several property owners were being taxed for that sewer district when they were already hooked into a sewer in another district. He pointed out it looked as if it was "double taxation". Mr. Ferguson was informed by Mayor Studer that the matter would be referred to the sewer and sanitation committee for investigation and that if they had payed taxes previously, the matter would be discussed by the council. It was pointed out that these property owners had possibly been given permission to enter the sewer and were not taxed. If this was true they would be compelled to pay the district tax.

The discussion of the Sedalia Bus Co., matter was taken up at this point. The discussion of the bus service curtailment appears in another story.

The bills of the city were then read and approved for payment The bills totalling $29,083.44 were as follows: Fire Department $1,-050.78; Public Buildings, $2,678.67; Sanitary Department, $562.03; Police Department, $1,554.62; Street and Alley Department, $4,-326.67; Hospital No. 2, $198.49; Contingent Account, $1,862.27; Lights, Water, Bond and Miscellaneous $16,849.91.

Hearing Held In Case Filed Against Prosecuting Attorney

A hearing was held in the Circuit Court Tuesday afternoon before Circuit Judge Sam Blair in a case which was filed by Earl Manley, Dresden, against Harold Bamburg, acting prosecuting attorney. The affidavit, which was filed by Manley's attorney William F. Brown, alleged non-performance of official duty by the local prosecuting attorney's office.

The trial resulted from an alleged assault between the plaintiff and State Trooper Earl Gregory at the scene of an accident near Dresden on June 21, when Gregory allegedly injured Manley in an incident which came about during an argument over who would remove one of the cars at the accident. Manley, who runs a garage and wrecker service at Dresden went to the prosecuting attorney's office the morning of the purported attack and asked Bamburg to file an assault charge against the patrolman. Bamburg did not file the charges on the grounds that the matter was up to the discretion of his office and that, in his opinion, no crime had been committed by the police officer.

Later, after an unsuccessful attempt to file the charge in the Magistrate Court himself, Manley filed an affidavit in the Circuit Court asking for the special prosecutor to see whether Bamburg had fulfilled the duties of his office in refusing to file against Gregory.

The first witness for the plaintiff in the hearing which was set for 1 p.m. Tuesday afternoon was Dr. Kenneth L. Holdren, 500 South Quincy, who testified that he treated Manley the morning of June 21, for scratched wounds on his neck and a skinned left arm.

Whitfield Testifies

R. B. Whitfield, Dresden, who was at the accident when the alleged assault was reported to have taken place, told the court that the owners of the two cars had told Manley to tow them off the highway and soon after a wrecker from Sedalia owned by George Chamberlin, arrived at the scene to "haul off" one of the cars. Later Whitfield said he heard a woman scream and then he saw the trooper fling Manley to the highway. He also testified that the condition of the man's clothes was "pretty well messed up."

In the cross examination Whitfield said that he had received a letter from the prosecuting attorney's office asking him to get in touch with the office and give information on the incident, which he failed to do.

Fred Whitfield, Dresden, who was also at the scene of the accident, said that he did not see the incident, but that he saw the trooper and Manley talking and then Manley was on his head and shoulders in the highway. He also said he called at the prosecuting attorney's office after receiving a letter. Later he said he saw Manley shaking his finger, but did not say at whom.

Two other witnesses testified, and then Manley, himself, was brought to the witness stand. He told the court that he had turned both cars involved in the wreck right side up and then described his injuries. He described the alleged attack to the court in which he said that after talking with Gregory he turned and was attacked from the back.

He said that after the incident he went to Sedalia where he went to the prosecuting attorney's office and was told by Bamburg that he could do nothing about it.

Gregory Gives His Version

Following Manley the first witness for Bamburg was called. The witness, State Trooper Earl Gregory, said he helped load the injured in an ambulance after he arrived at the scene of the accident and then called the Chamberlin wrecker of Sedalia to tow away one of the cars. Then he gave his version of the incident. He said he had told Manley repeatedly to leave the scene and finally pushed him. He said Manley raised his hands (he didn't know whether Manley was going to strike or resist him) and then he put an arm across Manley's chest, stepped behind him and pulled Manley to the pavement.

Then he told of ordering Manley to leave and after completing an investigation of the accident he himself left for Sedalia.

George Chamberlin, 1213 East Broadway, described to the court what happened after he arrived at the scene of the accident and told that he towed one of the cars into Sedalia.

As the final witness for Bamburg, the acting prosecuting attorney placed himself on the witness stand and told his version in narrative form. In his testimony he related that he told Manley that he knew the officer involved in the scuffle and found it hard to believe that he had actually committed assault. He further stated that Manley said he would see a lawyer and he told him that was the thing to do.

Bamburg also read an opinion from the attorney general's office which said that it was the duty of the prosecuting attorney to protect the innocent as well as prosecute the guilty. Bamburg also told of the investigation he had made of the incident which led him to believe there were no grounds for filing a charge against Gregory.

Following Bamburg's testimony Judge Blair recessed court for five minutes. After court resumed Brown cross-examined Bamburg, during which they discussed the merits of the law surrounding the case.

Two more witnesses were Sgt. Charles Homan of the Sedalia Police Department and Charles Redding, Beaman, who were at the police station when George Chamberlin visited there after the incident. Both men testified that Chamberlin had stated that Gregory hit Manley and one said he also added Manley received what he was asking for.

With the testimony completed Judge Blair said that he would take the case under advisement and that he would be in Sedalia on Monday, Sept. 8, and he might or might not have made a decision at that time.

Donnie Knight To Hospital For Third Time

CENTRALIA, Ill. (AP) — Donnie Knight is back in the hospital fighting for breath and life, and facing another hospital birthday. It's nothing new to him. At 13, he's known as many hospital birthdays as birthdays at home.

When he was six, Donnie was left with permanently impaired breathing by an attack of bulbar poliomyelitis. He spent years in St. Anthony's Hospital in St. Louis, and won that fight with the help of an iron lung.

Two years ago he was allowed to return home for his birthday. While a younger brother pushed his wheelchair, Donnie fell out and broke his left leg. Shock and complications nearly halted his breathing and he went back to the hospital.

He won his fight for life again and returned home to live with his parents and five brothers and sisters.

But a similar accident Sunday, tipping him out of his wheelchair, resulted in fractures of both legs.

"Well, Donnie boy," said his mother, "here we go again."

The plucky youngster is back in St. Anthony's hospital today, "resting pretty well," and facing the almost certain prospect that he will still be there Oct. 30 when he will be 14.

Nixon Plans To Dwell On 'Corruption'

ROCKLAND, Me. (AP) — Sen. Richard M. Nixon moves on through Maine today on a campaign kickoff tour, pledged to make "Communist subversion and corruption" in government "the theme of every speech from now until the election."

The Republican vice presidential candidate began last night in Bangor what he announced as "the most intensive campaign in the history of America politics. .. ."

As he spoke, Republican presidential nominee Dwight D. Eisenhower opened in Atlanta, Ga., what Nixon said would be a fighting campaign for election and a chance to clean up "the mess in Washington."

Nixon, presented by a toastmaster as "the nemesis of Alger Hiss and other such miscreants," will wind up his second day of Maine campaigning with a Sanford address tonight. Before then, he will have spoken to Rockland and Auburn-Lewiston audiences. He is traveling by chartered plane.

"I had hoped, frankly," Nixon said, at Bangor, "that Communist subversion in the United States would not be an issue in the campaign. I had supposed we were all against communism.

"But Mr. Stevenson has raised the issue. He has made light of the Communist threat. He has demonstrated a shocking lack of understanding of this deadly serious matter.

"He has referred to it not as a 'red herring' but as a phantom in our midst.

"In Augusta on Saturday night, I am going to talk about the Communist 'phantoms' and what they have done. I think you will be surprised."

Nixon told a press conference he would name names when and if it became necessary in discussing the administration's record. He said he does not believe Eisenhower will deal in names and especially will avoid direct references to Stevenson and Sparkman.

The 39-year-old Navy veteran told a cheering Bangor audience of 800 he will campaign on the record of the Truman administration.

"We can anticipate charges of smear, hatcheting and name-calling as we delve into the administration's sorry record," he said, "so let's get one thing straight right now:

"If the record itself smears, let it smear. If the dry rot of corruption and communism, which has eaten deep into our body politic during the past seven years, can only be chopped out with a hatchet — then let's call for at hatchet."

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

Sure You Haven't A "Blind Spot"?

As I was driving down Main Street last Saturday, another car swung out right in front of me. It turned out to be Buck Blake. He wasn't going fast. It was just that he had something else on his mind at that particular moment.

Buck's really one of the nicest fellows I've ever known. But, sometimes he gets to day-dreaming on the road. He sort of gets a "blind spot" to what's going on about him!

Now, lots of normally considerate folks have their "blind spots." It could be anything from day-dreaming while driving a car to humming out loud at the movies.

From where I sit, it's mighty important to be on guard against your own "blind spots." The other fellow has a right to his "share of the road," too—whether it's having a taste for a temperate glass of sparkling beer or a desire to listen to some classical music if he wants to.

TENT CITY FOR PLOW CONTEST—Almost overnight hundreds of tents, both large and small, have sprung up on this southern Minnesota farm at Kasson. They're to help provide for the crowds of up to 150,000 persons expected for the National Plowing Contests. Both major presidential candidates will address the event Saturday. Besides tents, tractors for the farmers to use in the plowing competition abound. (AP WIREPHOTO)

Ghostlike Phantom Riders Scare Daylights Out of Couple Enjoying Moonlight On Drive

"T-t-t-there's t-t-two m-m-men on horses," exclaimed an excited motorists to State Trooper Pete Stohr as he drove up to the police station on the wrong side of the street about 8:30 o'clock Wednesday night. "Where?" asked Stohr. "O-o-on C-c-circle D-d-d-drive, o-o-out west," he answered.

"Phantom riders" had appeared in the area of the new Woodlawn subdivision west of State Fair Boulevard between Third and Broadway. So well were they equipped with ghost covers for their horses and themselves that the young couple parked on Circle Drive, enjoying the beautiful moonlight, were frightened to the point of being speechless. The riders on their steeds rode up to the parked car on the drive, peered into the car windows—but not for long.

The young man hurried started his car and raced to the Sedalia police station. He leaned out of his car as he stopped, wide-eyed, and gave his information to Trooper Stohr in a real "scared" fashion. The young couple, after giving the information, departed without giving their names to the officers.

Stohr, in company with Earl Holstein, State Health Department, and Frank Strain, special officer, jumped into the patrol car and rushed to the locality. Straining their eyes, the men finally caught a glimpse of two white forms in the distance and in the moonlight shadows. Stohr turned on his spotlight and, behold, down the road were the objects, with two pairs of eyes of the steeds of the phantom riders reflecting the light.

Suddenly one object turned and dashed into the wooded area, with the white garb, covering the steed and rider, flowing backward as if it were really a ghost. The other started in another direction but stopped at the call of the officer. The second "phantom" came riding out from the woods to be with her companion.

On one horse was a 16-year-old girl. On the other was a 13-year-old boy. Both were scared when they found it was an officer who was there. "Please don't tell on us; we would be whipped," they said excitedly. Trooper Stohr then talked with the two, informing them how dangerous it is to be riding around with sheets and hoods scaring people parked on the road. The two agreed, but explained "it was lots of fun."

Dismissing them to go home, the two rode their steeds in real horsemanlike manner and disappeared across the subdivision, their sheets floating in the air just like "phantom riders" in the moonlight.

"Although serious," said Stohr, "they did look pretty as they dashed away in the moonlight to go home, their white garments floating in the air."

Had the phantom riders disappeared without being talked to by Trooper Stohr, some might have though they were ghost riders who rode the old Kite race track, coming back to show displeasure over their haunts being disturbed for modern times.

Bunker Hill is a portion of the old Kite track in which the new housing development is a part.

Stevenson Outlines Replies To 'Time for Change' Charge

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson laid out today a program of five major speeches, starting with a reply in Denver Friday to the Republican slogan, "It's time for a change."

The Democratic presidential nominee announced through his campaign manager, Wilson Wyatt, that in the five speeches he will deal with the independent vote, GOP "catch phrases" and lay down a farm program, in Kasson, Minn., Saturday.

Wyatt said that at Seattle, Sept. 8, the Illinois governor will give his views on conservation and public power. Stevenson will speak Sept. 9 in San Francisco on foreign policy. The top for a fifth major speech in Los Angeles, Sept. 11, has not been finally fixed, Wyatt said.

Ignores Eisenhower

Continuing a policy of ignoring the activities of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, the Republican presidential nominee, Wyatt declined to comment on charges Eisenhower has levelled at the Democrats in the southern trip the GOP nominee just completed.

Stevenson's manager was asked if the governor's camp was "worried" by the interest and large crowds Eisenhower had had in the South.

"It was interesting but it hasn't worried us," Wyatt said. "Why should it? He has had large crowds but that doesn't necessarily mean anything.

Dewey, Too, Has Crowds

"I remember that four years ago in Louisville, Ky., Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York—who might be called one of Eisenhower's eastern managers — had a terrific crowd. Dewey greeted this crowd by saying they couldn't all be Republicans. As it turned out, he was right on election day."

Wyatt noted that President Truman carried Kentucky in 1948 by a substantial margin.

Reporters suggested that Gov. Stevenson may have been talking over the heads of some of his listeners on his trip last week end and response of his crowds were disappointing to some party members.

Will Understand Adlai

Asserting that the governor will continue to write the final drafts of all of his speeches, Wyatt said he doesn't believe the ordinary voter will have any trouble in understanding what Stevenson is talking about.

"I don't think you've got to write down to the American people," Wyatt declared.

He said Stevenson had made no attempt to give "rabble-rousing" speeches in Michigan, but was pursuing his program of laying down formally his views on major issues. He said Stevenson feels the people should have a chance to size up his program before the final phase of the campaign rolls around in October.

"I think it would be an awfully good thing to treat the American people as the adults they are," Wyatt said.

Cite McCormick Moves

Earlier today, Stevenson supporters tried to drive a wedge between Eisenhower and Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio in the GOP ranks.

They cited the defection of Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of the Chicago Tribune, as an asset in their effort to capture the vital Midwest in the presidential race.

McCormick has advised Republicans to ignore both presidential nominees and concentrate on electing selected GOP members of Congress in preparation for a third party presidential effort in 1956.

A Stevenson aide told this reporter he regards this as a "major break" for the Democratic nominee in Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin and Iowa, where the Tribune circulates widely. These four states form the heartland of a Midwestern area where President Truman won his unexpected victory in 1948.

The Stevenson aide said he believes McCormick's views will affect many Republicans who supported Taft for the nomination, and still are angry that Eisenhower won in Chicago on the issue that Taft's backers had "stolen" delegates in Southern states.

The Stevenson ramp apparently believes that McCormick's views won't affect many Democrats but will cut deeply into Republican ranks. The Democratic nominee's followers said they don't expect to harvest many Republican votes but they do hope that many GOP members will stay away from the polls in November.

Will Cut GOP Ranks

In this connection, it was disclosed that representatives of the Illinois governor had made careful canvasses of the situation in Ohio and returned here with optimistic reports.

Ohio's Democratic Gov. Frank Lausche, a proved vote-getter, is running for re-election and is opposed by Republican Charles Taft, brother of the senator.

Although Sen. John Bricker has announced that Sen. Taft will make speeches for the ticket in the state, the senator did not support his brother for the gubernatorial nomination and there still is some doubt how far Robert Taft will go in urging Eisenhower's election.

Democrats obviously hope to capitalize on this situation in bidding for Ohio's 25 vital electoral votes. They believe many supporters of Sen. Taft will stay home on election day.

Taft himself is expected to meet with Eisenhower some time next week to determine the amount of campaigning he will do before November.

In the meantime, Stevenson, preparing for the start of a Western trip, surrounded with mystery the topics he will discuss on his initial tour appearance at Denver tomorrow. Aides said they could not comment on reports he will answer at that time Republican assertions that it is time for a change in Washington.

One associate said the governor was being so tight-fisted about advance copies of his speech that he wouldn't even let Wilson Wyatt, his personal campaign manager, have an advance peak.

Empty Beer Case Object of Big Search

GOBLES, Mich. (AP) — Tavern owner Earl McNamara scoured the countryside yesterday looking for an empty beer case.

It wasn't just an ordinary case, but one in which McNamara hid his Labor Day receipts of $1,600.

In the rush of business, he sold the case full of beer to four men and remembered a short time later what he had done. Yesterday one of the four returned to the tavern and, upon questiong by McNamara, said the men drank the beer and thew the case away.

Missing Daughter 'Home'

Girl, 24, Kidnaped 22 Years Ago, May Never Know If She Has Found Parents

CHICAGO (AP)—Mrs. Mary McClelland of San Pablo, Calif., and Mrs. Catherine Moroney met face-to-face today but neither could say for sure whether the latter was the mother and the other her daughter who was kidnaped 22 years ago.

Mrs. McClelland, an attractive 24 year old brunette, said:

"I probably will never know" if she is Mary Agenes Moroney, who was abducted at the age of two in 1930.

Evidence compiled by two newspapers, The Chicago Daily News and The Oakland (Calif.) Tribune, had shown that Mrs. McClelland could be the long-missing Mary Agnes Moroney. The evidence was based on blood tests, similarities in tooth structures and other factors in Mrs. McClelland's background.

Gone as Far as Can

Today Mrs. McClelland said: "I just don't know. I think it has gone about as far as it can go. They have done about all they can do, and I probably will never know for sure."

Mrs. Moroney, a thin, worn woman of 40 who has borne seven other children, concurred.

"It is impossible to say," Mrs. Moroney told newsmen who gathered at the Moroney home to witness the meeting.

"She does look similar to the other children, but there is a little bit of difference—whether it would be called marked or not, I don't know."

Feels 'Warm' Toward Girl

Mrs. Moroney had said previously she would rely on her feelings in trying to determine whether the California woman was her long-lost daughter.

What were her feelings?

"I felt warm toward the girl, as far as that goes," she told reporters. "We put our arms about each other. We had been corresponding and it wasn't like meeting a total stranger."

Mrs. Moroney's husband, Michael, 51, was nervous at meeting the young woman who might be his eldest child. They were introduced by newsmen. Moroney, a small, gray-haired man in faded work jeans, approached Mrs. McClelland shyly and asked:

Meets Mr. Moroney

"Are you Mary McClelland?"

Newsmen who were busily interviewing the young woman told her:

"This is Mr. Moroney."

"Yes, I have seen pictures," Mrs. McClelland said, and the two shook hands formally.

Later Moroney, speaking with an Irish brogue, said he could not tell whether Mrs. McClelland is his child.

Ike's Formal Drive Opening In Speech Tonite

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Republican Presidential Candidate Dwight D. Eisenhower, smiling and waving, brought his campaign special to Philadelphia today for the formal start of the drive he has aimed at the White House.

An official welcoming party of 500 Pennsylvania Republican leaders greeted him as the train came to a stop in the Pennsylvania railroad's 30th Street station after a journey of a little more than two hours from New York.

Upstairs on the broad concourse of the station hundreds more spectators and guests waited for the GOP nominee as he strode through the crowd into the lead car of a motorcade to take him through crowded downtown streets to Independence Hall.

Ahead of him lay an intensive minute-by-minute schedule of tours through the city, meetings with Republican groups and individuals and a major policy speech tonight before a crowd that party leaders were confident would overflow Convention Hall's 15,000 seats.

Eisenhower's program listed, in addition to his Convention Hall speech, brief talks at Independence Hall, and before three Republican groups meeting at a downtown hotel.

A scheduled fall meeting of the Republican state committee of Pennsylvania had been shifted here to coincide with the nominee's visit. Eisenhower's speech there was expected to be something of a "pep talk" to the party workers whose job it will be to steam up enthusiasm for the Republican ticket and get out the vote in November.

As Eisenhower wound up his Southern trip at Little Rock, Ark., late yesterday, he tackled the racial issue briefly.

Repeating what he had said in Tampa, Fla., earlier in the day, he pointedly reminded the audience that the Declaration of Independence says, "All men are created equal." Eisenhower also said the founding fathers made no mention of color of skin.

Eisenhower told his Little Rock audience:

"We must approach . . . group problems in the spirit of co-operation and readiness to accept the responsibilities by each of us that are group in character.

"If we do not do that, then there comes that creeping tide of law, central law, that finally results in the all-powerful state and we do it because we are regimented . . ."

Taft's 'Thanks' To Carl Schrader For Efforts Here

Carl D. Schrader, chairman of the Pettis County Republican committee, has received a letter of appreciation from Senator Robert A. Taft, candidate for the Republican nomination for president, in which he says:

"I wish to say how greatly I appreciate the support which you gave to my campaign and the work which you did in Missouri. I was very proud of the Taft organization; and, if that could have brought about success, it certainly would have done so. We are all fighting for a cause—to keep the Republican Party free of New Deal influences, in order that it might be successful in the election, and thereafter conduct a government based on sound Republican principles. We can still continue to carry on that fight in the states both before and after the election this Fall.

"Of course, I was disappointed about everything, but even more when I think of you and others who spent so much time, energy and money in my behalf without result.

"I want you to know that I shall always remain grateful to you."

Many Repairs and Additions Make Schools Ready for Term

Painting and Cleaning Has Been Done At All Buildings for Opening Day Of New Year, Next Monday, Sept. 8th

Since the end of the last school term in May, the Sedalia School System has been under an extensive program of repairs. The contract work, which includes roofing, grading and other major construction, has been estimated at $7,000. Other work in the schools, such as replacing broken windows, painting, general repair and the cleanup work has also run into several thousands of dollars.

At Smith-Cotton High School all the corridors and stairways have been painted and a driveway behind the building, between school and cafeteria, has been paved and widened. A new automatic pump has been installed in the boiler room and improvements, which include a new water and gas system, have been added to the chemistry room.

New Doors at Horace Mann

Horace Mann School received a new coat of paint inside the old building and the windows and doors on the outside were also given a coat of weather paint. Among the improvements which were made was a new tile drain from the roof to the street; a new sidewalk in front of the school and new doors on the old building. These improvements were in addition to the regular summer work of varnishing woodwork and floors and placing new chat on the playground.

Washington Goes Modern

Washington School has gone modern this year with newly decorated rooms in pastel colors, ranging from powder blue to turquoise. Washington also has been converted to gas heating and is the last school in the Sedalia system to obtain this type of heating. The office in the building has been redecorated and a new asphalt floor was installed. Along with other minor repairs and cleaning, the windows and doors on the outside were also painted.

New Rooms at Mark Twain

Mark Twain School has also received a modern air with newly pastel painted classrooms and offices. The boys room was also equipped with two showers for use with the gymnasium. One new classroom was added at Mark Twain to handle the increased enrollment. The room was furnished with new equipment, including desks, and is located where the kindergarten was formerly held.

Repair Broadway Belfry

Broadway School received a great deal of cleaning and redecorating through the summer including some work on the old belfry. One room in the school was fixed into a classroom and new furniture was installed. Other painting throughout has improved the looks of the school and made it much lighter and more cheerful.

Repairs at Jefferson

Most of the work completed at Jefferson School was of a general construction nature. The walls and ceilings were patched and painted and the roof over the school was repaired. The most noticeable improvement was the addition of an outlet from the basement on the northwest.

New Roof at Whittier

Whittier School was re-roofed completely and the walls in the building were plastered and painted. A window fan was placed in the basement and other work consisted of minor repairs and cleaning.

Lunch Room at Hubbard

At the last school board meeting a bid was let to the Dean Construction Company for building of an addition to Hubbard school as a lunch room. The bid which was accepted was for $16,211 and the room will be constructed on the west, between the hall which connects the high school and the grade school buildings. Other construction, which already has been completed at Hubbard, consists of the painting of outside windows and doors, painting on the wainscoting inside and new roofing over the old manual training shop and auditorium.

The schools are now ready for the opening on Monday, Sept. 8, and for the most part they will provide clean and well equipped rooms for both students in grade and high schools.

More Neatness In Registration Books Needed

Legislative Election Law Committee Urged To Make New Demand

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Judge J. Henry Caruthers of the Cape Girardeau Court of Common Pleas said today a little neatness and tidiness in voter registration books would be a big help.

He wrote a letter to the joint legislative election law revision commission, urging that change.

Voters should be required to register at intervals, say every four years, Judge Caruthers said. That would help keep the books in better shape.

"Our Cape Girardeau city registration books have grown to be very bulky, unwieldy and hard to handle," he wrote.

"They are a conglomerated mass of no information, misinformation and a source of constant complaint and criticism. I suppose it is really unfair to expect a registrar under the present laws to acquire any substantial degree of competency in dealing with such so-called records."

He said the registration lists should be "kept clean, up-to-date and dependable."

The commission met today for its second public hearing. But most of the suggestions already were in—in letters and pamphlets from outstate cities and counties.

Tomorrow, individual voters will have a chance to air their complaints about Missouri's hodge podge election laws, the accumulation of years of additions and only infrequent weedings.

Generally the suggestions were on minor points that would in the long run clear out a lot of obsolete laws, clarify confusing phraseology or speed up the election job in the rural areas.

Howard C. Potter, city attorney of Springfield, offered these main suggestions:

1. Permit use of voting machines throughout the state but leave it up to the local election officials or the people whether the expense of such machines would be worth while. He said since they would be used frequently in statewide elections, the state should bear part of the cost.

2. Put a top age limit on judges and clerks. In the old days, Potter said, those jobs were considered public services and highly qualified persons tok them. Lately, he added interest has lagged and generally the only people who will take them at the low salaries are "so old that they are inefficient."

3. Shorten the polling hours by an hour or so. Potter said the present 13-hour voting day, from 6 a. m. to 7 p. m., was set up back in the days when people worked 12 or 15 hours a day.

4. Increase the limits for campaign expenses since candidates now are faced with a lot higher prices for campaigning—and radio campaigning now is well established with television beginning to take an important place, too, he said.

Adlai By 1 to 2

LONDON (AP) — One of Britain's leading handbooks made Democrat Adlai Stevenson a 1 to 2 favorite today to win the U. S. presidential race from Republican Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Eisenhower To Visit Sedalia On Sept. 20

According to information released Wednesday by GOP National Chairman Arthur E. Summerfield, Gen. Dwight Eisenhower will be in Sedalia Sept. 20.

The arrangements are unknown at this time. At the Missouri Pacific station here an official said that in all probability the train will be a special one, and the stopover here will be of short duration.

Other scheduled stops the same day on the train which will run from Kansas City to St. Louis include Warrensburg and California.

Seeking Man For Molesting Girl, 6, Here

Described as 30 Years Old, He Was Driving Grey Car

A statewide search is on for a man described as being about 30 years old, driving a grey Ford car, wanted for molesting a six-year-old girl in Sedalia Wednesday night. A warrant for the man has been issued by Prosecuting Attorney Harold Bamburg, charging him with molesting a minor child.

The child was examined by Dr. K. L. Holdren Wednesday night shortly after she had been returned to her parents. She did not suffer injury, but was greatly bewildered at events which had occurred during her detainment by the man who had picked her up in front of her home.

The little girl was playing with other children in the neighborhood when the man drove up and parked. It was reported by one of her little playmates the man encouraged the child to hide by his car when they were playing hide-and-seek. The child verified this after she was returned to her parents.

It was about 8 o'clock when the man picked up the little girl and drove off, but it wasn't until about an hour later, after the frantic parents had searched the neighborhood looking for her, that a report was made to the police. Chief of Police Edgar Neighbors immediately assigned all avaliable officers to the search along with the State Highway Patrol and several volunteers who were visiting at police headquarters.

In the meantime a request was made to KDRO to broadcast a missing report on the child and this brought out more persons who assisted in the neighborhood search.

Police officers began driving country roads, one group going to the MKT stockyards. As the patrol car pulled up at the stockyards drive and parking lot, a car backed out slowly and pulled away. The police at the time had no description of the car or man, but the officers noted the license number of the vehicle and took it down. One officer said, "Our first thought was to try and find the child and a search of the surrounding area was made."

Shortly after 10 o'clock the little girl was driven back to within a short distance of her home and let out of the car. Neighbors found her and immediately took her to her parents.

It was not until after the child was found that one of her playmates reported seeing the automobile in which she disappeared. He told the officers the description of the vehicle and of the man. The description of the car tallied with that from which police obtained the license number.

The State Highway Patrol has broadcast over its network for the pickup of the man answering the description given by the child and her playmate.

Four Polio Victims From Versailles Area Receiving Treatments

Three polio sufferers from Versailles have been admitted to General Hospital, Kansas City, and a possible fourth was admitted to the Children's Mercy Hospital, Kansas City.

Mrs. Jackie Gunn entered General Hospital Sunday. Miss Thelma Wilson, daughter of Mrs. Leonard Wilson, and Miss Marcella Avey, formerly of Nebraska, were admitted on Tuesday.

Samuel Le Carver, 1½-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Carver, Gravois Mills, was admitted to Mercy Hospital. His illness has been tentatively diagnosed as polio and his condition is described as fair.

Employment Jump Seen In Missouri

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Employment is on the upswing again in Missouri after sharp drops in August and July.

Charles A. Ricker, head of the division of employment security, reported today employment started upward last week after crippling strikes had ended. Employment offices in Kansas City and St. Louis, he said, now have 2,000 job orders going begging.

John L. Pushing Contract

Wants Hard Coal Issues Settled In Order to Start Soft Coal Bargaining

WASHINGTON (AP) — John L. Lewis was reported today striving for a quick hard coal agreement so he can concentrate on negotiations with the bigger and more far-flung soft coal industry.

Lewis has never publicly served demands on either the anthracite (hard coal) or bituminous (soft coal) mine owners. But he is reportedly aiming for a sizable boost in the hard coal welfare fund and more wages and share-the-work provisions for soft coal miners.

Talks between the anthracite operators and Lewis' United Mine Workers union took on a hopeful note. Thomas E. Kennedy, the UMW's vice president, told newsmen "some progress" was being made.

The talks, held previously in New York and Wilkes-Barre, Pa., moved here yesterday. The progress statement was made after a one hour session during which Lewis, Kennedy and Edward G. Fox, president of the Philadelphia & Reading Coal and Iron Company and chief industry negotiator, huddled privately.

The negotiations were scheduled to resume today at the union's headquarters.

Both hard and soft coal operators now pay 30 cents a ton on all coal production toward union welfare funds to finance pension for ex-miners and other benefits.

Hard coal miners produce only about a third as much tonnage as soft coal miners, and the anthracite tonnage royalty has not been enough to pay the pensions. Hard coal miners have been making up the deficit themselves, paying $1 assessments every two weeks. The bituminous welfare fund, by contrast, has a 100 million dollar surplus.

Lewis is believed to be driving hard for a bigger anthracite royalty—perhaps as much as 50 cents a ton.

In the soft coal industry, Lewis has talked informally—with Harry Moses, representing northern mines, and Joseph Moody, spokesman for southern bituminous interests—on a share-the-work plan.

With some soft coal miners working only two or three days a week and others four or five days, Lewis wants some plan to level out the employment. A higher pay rate, or penalty, for all work done after three days a week has been mentioned.

The miner's basic wage is $16.35 for an eight-hour day, part of which includes travel time and a lunch period.

Orientation Day At Smith-Cotton High On Friday

Drake, principal; introduction of junior Student Council president, Van Van Dyne; care of the building, Betty Leiter; safety and traffic, Charles Walch, vice-president Senior Student Counicl; absence and tardies, Tricia Robinson; adjustment to high school, Charlotte Salveter; the cafeteria, Pinky Miller, assistant principal; Dismissal to Classes.

Polio Victim Home

Mary Margaret Rouchka, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rouchka, 1100 State Fair Boulevard, who had a light form of polio, has returned home from Kansas City where she has been the past ten days in General Hospital. Her condition is satisfactory and she has no paralysis.

Brother of Sedalian Becomes Ace Today As U.S. Airmen Shoot Down 11 Commie MIGs

SEOUL, Korea (AP) — The U. S. Fifth Air Force said U. S. Sabre jet pilots today shot down 11 Red MIG jets and crippled three in fiery air battles over North Korea.

America's 19th jet ace of the Korean War was crowned in the fiery battles.

Maj. Frederick C. Bleese of Phoenix, Ariz., shot down his fifth MIG to qualify as an ace. He is the son of Brig. Gen. (Ret.) and Mrs. F. A. Bleese, Richmond, Va.

The fast Sabres bagged their whopping total of Russian-type jets after U. S. Okinawa-based Superforts last night attacked the Changjin hydroelectric plant in North Korea—newly repaired from previous bombings.

Allied losses, if any, in the blazing dogfights will be reported in a weekly summary later this week.

One Sabre pilot reported seeing a MIG go down without absorbing a shot during the jet battles between the Yalu and Chongchon Rivers in extreme northwest Korea.

Capt. Arthur McCarthy, Dearborn, Mich., said the Red jet overshot him, went out of control, and its pilot bailed out.

The Air Force said an unidentified U. S. pilot bailed out of his damaged Sabre over neutral territory, presumably the Panmunjom truce conference site.

The fiery battles came during a break in the bad weather which Wednesday kept virtually all U. N. planes but the big superforts on the ground.

Clouds covered the key power installation and the B29s used radar to aim their bombs.

The Far East Air Forces said in Tokyo there was no Red opposition and all the bombers returned. The number on the raid was not disclosed.

U. S. Marine fliers knocked out Changjin's Plant No. 1 — last night's target — late in 1950. Repaired, it was bombed in a big air attack last June. The Air Force said new repair work indicated the turbines were desperately needed to bolster the Communist power supply.

Winds up to 70 miles an hour and about four inches of rain lashed parts of the battlefront Tuesday and Wednesday.

Reds probed 11 times across the front Wednesday. Chinese troops felt out Bunker Hill near Panmunjom again this morning, then withdrew.

None of the skirmishes involved more than 25 to 50 soldiers.

Major Blesse Is Mrs. Bobbitt's Brother

Maj. Frederick C. Blesse, mentioned in the accompanying story as the newest American ace in Korea, is a brother of Mrs. A. M. Bobbitt, Sedalia, wife of Major Bobbitt of the Sedalia Air Force Base.

Blesse is making his second tour of duty in Korea, having volunteered to go back for 100 more missions after completing 107 missions in his first period over there. He wanted to become an ace and for that reason asked to return after a two-month leave at home following his initial Korean experience.

Married, his wife making her home in Phoenix, Blesse has been in Korea when both of his children were born—the first time he was there—his son was born and while he has been there for the second time he has become the father of a daughter he'll see when his tour of duty is completed.

Dulles Says It's 'Absurd' That Ike Seeks Red Revolt

NEW YORK (AP) — John Foster Dulles, answering a statement by President Truman, says it is "absurd to suggest" that Dwight D. Eisenhower is seeking a revolt of unarmed peoples under the Soviet yoke.

Dulles, foreign policy adviser to the Republican presidential candidate, made the statement yesterday in replying to what he called attempts by Truman to "belittle and besmirch" Eisenhower.

Truman, speaking Tuesday at Parkersburg, W. Va., accused the Republicans of playing "cruel, gutter politics with the lives of countless good men and women behind the Iron Curtain."

Truman interpreted an earlier declaration by Eisenhower as an apparent call for revolt by nations captured by the Soviet. The President said, however, that he didn't really believe the Republicans wanted revolts but were merely bidding for votes on the issue.

Dulles' comment on that was:

"It is, of course, absurd to suggest that Gen. Eisenhower anticipates invoking wholesale insurrection by unarmed slaves. Premature to Truman at Eisenhower's re-revolt would expose the patriotic people to liquidation."

Dulles, who distributed his reply gional campaign headquarters here continued:

"There are countless peaceful ways by which the tasks of the Russian despots can be made so unbearably difficult that they (enslaved peoples) will renounce their rule. That was shown in Yugoslavia."

The controversy grew from Eisenhower's address before the American Legion National Convention last week, in which he said:

"We can never rest and we must so inform all the world including the Kremlin that until the enslaved nations of the world have in the fullness of freedom the right to choose their paths, that then, and only then, can we say that there is a possible way of living peacefully and permanently with communism in the world."

Dulles, in his written statement yesterday, said, "We can trust the man (Eisenhower) who won the peace, rather than the man (Truman) who lost it."

Accuse Boy, 11, Set Fire To Playmates

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — An 11-year-old boy was accused today of setting two neighbor children afire in the attic of their home. Trapped and screaming, they burned to death.

The victims were Lindsey Cunningham, 8, and his sister Mary Louise, 12, Negroes.

Another sister, Esther, 11, was critically burned trying to save them. She was in San Antonio Hospital today.

A fourth member of the family, a frail, physically handicapped older sister, Ruth, 22, said she wrestled with the young assailant but he mounted a chair out of her reach and threw kerosene on the two children. Then he lit a paper torch and threw it into the attic, where the youngsters had been sorting clothing.

The parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Cunningham, were away at work.

Esther tossed water on the fire, police said. Ruth tried to climb to the aid of the screaming children but could not.

Mrs. Maude Wharton, a neighbor, tried to cut through ventilators in the attic with an axe when she heard the children screaming, "Save us, Maude, save us." An unidentified man grabbed the axe when she failed to cut through to the trapped pair, but he failed, too.

District Fire Chief Fred Roth told The Associated Press that the boy, arrested by Juvenile authorities, kept repeating, "I didn't do it. I didn't do it." He said the slight youngster, a Latin-American, wouldn't say anything else at the fire scene.

Patrolman A. C. Sandoval, police investigator, said several witnesses told him the boy had fought with the Cunningham children repeatedly. Sandoval said the boy was seen to enter the home, throw kerosene on the children and light it with a torch.

Garrison Believes Council Should Decide On Bus Problems

Woodrow "Woody" Garrison, councilman from the Second Ward, stated today he did not want the people to have a misunderstanding of his stand on the bus problem in Sedalia in his voting "No" on Mayor Herb Studer's plan to reach a satisfactory decision.

"I don't think the pressure should be put on 12 people. We are elected to the City Council to settle such problems confronting the city government," Garrison said in reference to the fact-finding committee which is to meet Friday night with the owners of the Sedalia Bus Co., to discuss the problem of curtailing the night service after 7 o'clock each night and on Sundays and holidays.

"I was neither voting for Mr. Howard, nor against Mayor Studer. I think it is strictly a problem for the mayor and city council," Garrison concluded.

T. J. McMillin, councilman from the Third Ward, and Garrison both declared they voted against the proposal at an executive meeting of the council held during a recess of the regular council meeting on Tuesday night. Councilman McMillin's explanation of his stand, made following the council meeting, was similar to Garrisons.

Nixon Sees Honest Spending As Greatest Promise of GOP

SANFORD, Me. (AP) — Sen. Richard M. Nixon says that a Republican administration in Washington could give no greater service than to show that "tax dollars can be honestly and effectively spent in the public interest."

The Republican vice presidential nominee moved into Connecticut last night after a two-day tour of Maine, which will hold its state election next Monday. The California senator will spend Friday and Saturday in Maine.

In a Sanford speech last night, Nixon said the "basic cause of inflation is that the government spends more than it takes in."

He said the Democratic administration had made a "mess" of fighting inflation, had made a "mess of the budget," and "a mess in handling the Communist problem."

"The administration refused time and time again to do anything about the Communist problem" he added. "They condoned it and covered it up."

He declared that "in the light of this coverup, I charge that for every case the public knows about today, there are 10 which haven't been uncovered."

Nixon said both Democrats and Republicans must demand "the most thoroughgoing housecleaning ever witnessed in U. S. government."

"Throw out the rascals in Washington," he said.

Both Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, the Republican presidential candidate, and Democratic candidate Adlai Stevenson agree that there is "a mess" in Washington, Nixon said. But, he said Stevenson "had to telephone his apologies to Mr. Truman for even daring to speak of messes" and "obviously isn't equal" to the cleaningup task.

RENO, Nev. (AP)—Tom Mechling, the lanky young newsman who set Nevada on its ear by dumping Sen. Pat McCarran's powerful political machine in Tuesday's primary election, has done a lot of writing on western problems.

An honor graduate from the University of Missouri School of Journalism in 1942, Mechling spent three years with the Office of Strategic Services during World War II and then specialized in the study of western needs.

He was discharged from service in 1945 as a first lieutenant, and spent the next three years touring the western states gathering information for articles which appeared in national magazines. He headquartered in Nevada off and on during that time.

The articles dealt mainly with reclamation, mining and power problems in the west.

Mechling was born in Denver and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. David E. Mechling, live there.

Ham Recipe Turmoil Rages; Now It's Up To Stevenson

LIBERTY, Mo. — (AP) — Mrs. Victory N. Remley says it's just too bad about Robert E. Lee Hill getting all upset over the recipe Gov. Adlai Stevenson will use in cooking his prize Missouri ham.

Tuesday, Lt. Gov. James T. Blair, Jr., and Eugene L. Preston, Liberty editor, presented the Missouri State fair's grand champion country ham to the Democratic presidential nominee at Springfield, Ill.

Blair and Preston took along a recipe for "bachelor's ham" originated by Mrs. Remley.

Hill, of Columbia, Mo., who considers himself an authority on Boone County Missouri hams, said he was "outraged, perturbed, upset and even flustrated" over the recipe of Mrs. Remley. He especially objected to the mustard, coffee, peaches, cherries and pecans called for in the recipe.

"For years I have wondered about all the excitement about Boone County hams," Mrs. Remley said.

"Boone County hams are good of course, but Clay County hams are better," she continued, "so much better in fact the local gourmets never let them get away from here."

Mrs. Remley said she had never found it necessary to use vinegar to tenderize a Clay County ham—such as suggested in a recipe wirred Stevenson by Hill who is secretary of the State Bankers Association.

There's some doubt Stevenson will use her recipe, however, Mrs. Remley said since she is a Republican of long standing.

"I was happy to furnish a recipe for a Democrat to use in cooking a country cured ham and as a past Republican national committeewoman from Missouri I could be prevailed upon for a recipe for cooking a Democratic goose," she concluded.

Snake-Catcher Hired

DURBAN, South Africa (AP) — Mambas, puff-adders and other deadly reptiles have so harassed white technicians and African laborers working on the new 17 million dollar Standard Vacuum Oil refinery here that the company has hired a snake-catcher to prevent walkouts.

Site workers hacking their way through virgin bush complained of the snakes which festooned the trees and whirred up from overturned rocks.

Julio Desebrook, 66, was hired to flush the snakes out. He has been catching snakes about 40 years, and is rated as "the most successful snake catcher in South Africa."

Desebrook has caught one snake nearly five feet long. The company also permits him to sell the snakes he catches.

The tuataras of New Zealand are the last living remnant of a group of fossil reptiles which had three eyes. In the living species the third eye on top of the head is represented only by a group of scales.

Dewey Controls Drive?

Democratic Leaders Say The Former Nominee's Forces Beat Taft to Lead Ike

WASHINGTON (AP)— Democratic leaders asserted today that forces led by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York have snatched control of Dwight D. Eisenhower's presidential campaign.

This was the lead story in "The Democrat," a Democratic National Committee publication sent out to thousands of Democratic party leaders and workers.

It claimed that Dewey had defeated forces led by Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio in a tug-of-war for control of the Eisenhower campaign.

Ike Favorably Known

Stephen A. Mitchell, Democratic national chairman wrote in the publication that Eisenhower "is well and favorably known to the public; his personal popularity is still high."

And, itchell said, Stevenson is a comparative new comer to the national scene, and is not as well known as General Eisenhower."

As proof of its contention that Dewey has taken over the Eisenhower campaign, the publication noted that the general has switched his headquarters from Denver to New York.

One of the reasons for this move, the publication said, "was the failure of midwest Republicans, most of whom supported Taft, to contribute to the Eisenhower campaign fund."

See Rich GOP Backing

"Now that Eisenhower is in New York," it continued, "persons familiar with GOP campaign fund problems believe that he is receiving funds from the same rich sources that financed Dewey in his two unsuccessful attempts to win the presidency."

The publication noted that at the outset of the GOP campaign, two Taft backers—Sens. Everett Dirksen of Illinois and Karl Mundt of South Dakota—were given major posts in the party "high command."

List Dewey Aides

But, it said, since then top Dewey aides have been taking over. Among them, it listed James C. Haberty, Dewey's press secretary now serving Eisenhower in the same job, and Stanley High, "a Readers' Digest editor who was on the Dewey speech-writing team four years ago, is now grinding out speeches for Eisenhower."

The publication also carried a personal appeal from Gov. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois, Democratic presidential nominee, to "140,000 Democratic leaders" urging them to go all out in a drive to get Democratic voters registered for the election.

Stevenson referred to these workers as "the sinewes of the Democratic party." And, he added: "the outcome of the 1952 presidential election is largely in your hands."

Hurricane May Be Pushed Out To Sea by Wind

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Whether the Atlantic hurricane will strike the United States mainland or whirl to a harmless death over open water may be determined today by a high pressure area from the Midwest.

The hurricane, with walloping winds of 110 miles an hour, was estimated to be 700 miles east southeast of Jacksonville, Fla., in a pre-dawn advisory today.

The Miami Weather Bureau noted late last night that the high pressure front, then over Illinois and Ohio, was moving at a rapid pace toward the East Coast.

"There's a chance it will reach the coast today and block off the hurricane," said meteorologist Allen Marshall. "At any rate, we should have a good indication today of what is going to happen."

In an advisory at 5 a .m. (EST), the Weather Bureau said the storm was traveling toward the northwest at about 12 to 14 miles an hour, on a curving course that appeared for the present to have taken Florida out of range.

Marshall said there was a good chance that a continuing curve would swing it completely away from the coast.

Truman Called Great Statesman, 'Couldn't Be Bribed or Bought'

NEW YORK (AP) — Republican Sen. William Langer of North Dakota described President Truman yesterday as a great statesman who "couldn't be bribed, couldn't be bought and couldn't be bulldozed."

In a speech before the 38th biennial convention of the AFL National Association of Letter Carriers, Langer said:

"In the Senate, I have seen things that have made my very proud of Harry Truman. x x x

"He led the fight for the common people of the United States as only a great statesman could lead it."

The Republican senator, who often votes with the Democrats, said he challenged any Republican, "no matter who he is" to question Truman's integrity.

"In these days when it is fashionable to blame an outgoing President, unthinking people say things and opposition newspapers print things that in later years they are going to be ashamed of," Langer said.

Under usual desert working conditions, the maximum time between drinks for the average camel is eight or ten days. If it were not required to work during this period, it could probably last longer.

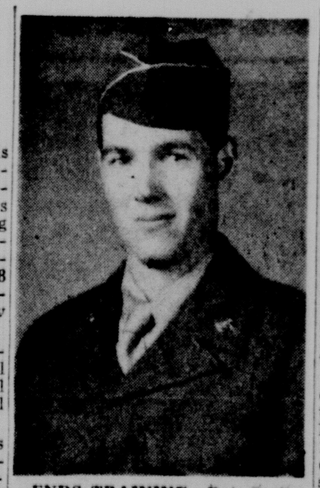
Pigs For Pets

WINNIPEG (AP)—Professor R. A. Wardle of the University of Manitoba says a hog in the house would make a useful pet.

The zoology department chairman told a veterinary association meeting that the hog, for one thing, would dispose of "those lawn grass clippings you dump secretly at night on someone else's lot." Prof Wardle said he had read that one pound of lawn clippings is equal to three pounds of meal.

"The hog is undoubtedly intelligent and I imagine he could easily be house trained. I see no reason why, in time, we should not have some quite desirable varieties of pigs sitting on our doorsteps."

The "wings" of flying squirrels are not true wings at all, but simply unbraced folds of skin along the sides of the body, attached to the front and hind legs.



ENDS TRAINING—Pvt. Cecil M. Oehrke, 21-year-old son of Oscar Oehrke, Florence, has completed 16-week Army basic training conducted by the 3rd Armored Division, Ft. Knox, Ky. He was inducted Feb. 21.

Neal Reyburn Speaks Before Kiwanis Club

A revealing talk on "The Job an Architect Has to Do" was given by Neal O. Reyburn, president of the Home Building Corporation, before the Sedalia Kiwanis Club meeting in Bothwell Hotel Thursday noon. He defined an architect as one who builds upon the past, not in the past.

He traced the development of architecture from the Greeks and Romans to the present time and pointed out that the fundamental concept of an architect is to express God's truth as well as designing for functional purposes.

The speaker was introduced by the Rev. Edward R. Sims, program chairman.

The club elected the following to attend the district Kiwanis meeting in Hot Springs, Ark.: delegates, President Walter Kennedy, Vice-President William Ward, and L .A. Pharris; alternates, Secretary Pinkney Miller, T. H. Yount and Arthur Morgan.

President Kennedy announced there would be a board of directors meeting Friday noon in Bothwell Hotel when committee chairmen will submit reports on their August activities.

The Rev. Arthur E. Schmidt, Cole Camp, was a club guest.

Boonville School Escapees Caught Here After Chase

Two escapees from the Missouri Training School at Boonville were captured in Sedalia about 12:30 a.m. Thursday by the Sedalia police. They were apprehended on Highway 65 just north of High Point junction.

The boys, both 16 years old, gave their names as James Hines, Danville, Ky., and John Albert Ford, St. Louis. They admitted escaping from the training school and also of making an endeavor to steal a car in front of 1809 South Barrett about 10:32 p.m. Wednesday.

Police were called to the address on Barrett when two youths were seen about an automobile. As the officers arrived on the scene the two ran and escaped. The boys told the officers that when one man was chasing them they succeeded in diving into the weeds and hiding when he ran by.

They then made their way to Highway 65, after lying in the weeds for more than an hour, and started hitch-hiking south. A neighbor, who had joined the hunt, spotted the boys on the highway and called the police. A patrol car was dispatched to the area and picked the two up for questioning.

It was 2:30 in the morning when they finally admitted they had escaped from the training school and told of walking to Highway 5, got a ride to Highway 50 and hitch-hiked a ride on into Sedalia.

Authorities from the training school arrived Thursday afternoon to return the boys to Boonville.

Claim a Union Under Control Of the Kremlin

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate investigators described a labor union today as "under the control of agents of the Kremlin" and urged the Justice Department to consider perjury action against its officers who signed non-Communist affidavits.

A tightening of the law to prevent Communists from holding union jobs or offices also was recommended by the Senate's internal security subcommittee in a report on its investigation of the Distributive, Processing, and Office Workers of America (DPOWA), an independent union.

The subcommittee made public sworn testimony in which the president of the union, Arthur Osman of Brooklyn, N. Y., and a number of other top officials were identified as Communists.

Osman refused to answer when asked if he ever had been a Communist, invoking his constitutional privilege against possible self-incrimination. Other officers of the union also balked as saying whether they are or ever were members of the Communist party.

The DPOWA, with some 65,000 members, was formed in October, 1950. When Osman was asked if meetings leading to its organization took place in Communist party headquarters, he declined to answer.

The hearings showed that Osman and others identified in the testimony as Communists had signed the non-Communist affidavits required by the Taft-Hartley Law to make the union eligible for certification as a bargaining agent by the National Labor Relations Board.

The subcommittee recommended that a copy of its hearings, conducted mostly behind closed doors, be turned over to the attorney general so that he could determine whether prosecution of these officers for perjury would be warranted.

It also recommended that Congress give prompt attention to a bill previously introduced by Sen. McCarran (D-Nev), the subcommittee chairman, to make it unlawful for a member of a Communist organization to hold office or any job with a labor organization and to permit employers to discharge persons who belong to organizations designated as subversive by the attorney general.

In a statement accompanying the subcommittee report, McCarran said the DPOWA "has advanced the Communist cause in many ways" and also has "become rich and powerful by preying on the gullibility of Negro workers and the fear and helplessness of small businessmen."

Public hearings held by the subcommittee in Memphis, Tenn., last fall brought out that about 95 per cent of the 1,100 members of the union's local there were Negroes.

Lee N. Lashley, president of the local, admitted under persistent questioning of Sen. Eastland (D-Miss) that he had been a member of the Communist party but dropped out because he was unable to get a satisfactory explanation of the party's objectives.

Eastland said he thought Lashley and other Negroes had been used by "unscrupulous people" who desired to set up a Communist organization in the South.

The business agent of the local at the time of the hearings, Edwin Kay McCrea, was identified in the testimony is a Communist party organizer in the state.

The largest unit of the DPOWA is District 65, with about 35,000 members in the New York City area. The subcommittee received testimony that it has used "goon squads" and other terrorist tactics against small business concerns and their employes.

Harvey M. Matusow of Dayton, O., a self-described former Communist who turned FBI informer, testified that almost without exception the full-time employes of the union are Communist party members.

Pettis 4-H Judging Teams Rank High In District Meet

Seven Pettis County judging teams gave good accounts of of themselves in Central Southwest District competition recently. Using the judging methods and information taught them by their local leaders, these boys and girls competed with teams of 13 other counties.

In the home economics division of the district contest, the food preservation team ranked first out of six and seven teams respectively.

On the food preservation team Doris Schlobohm of Walnut Grove 4-H ranked second with 545 points, receiving a blue ribbon: Joyce Snow of Flat Creek 4-H ranked third with 543 points, getting a blue ribbon; and Betty Schlobohm o. Walnut Grove, getting 500 points, placed 10th and received a red ribbon. This team compiled 1,356 points out of 1,800 points.

The home furnishings team also was first out of seven teams. Judging on this team were Ida Mae and Eileen Bahner and Ruth Riley. These girls are of the Striped College and South Abell 4-H clubs. It was very unfortunate that the team was disqualified because a former member had judged on a previous state winning judging team. It is a rule that a 4-H member is ineligible for judging competition if they have previously judged on a state winning team in the same division. This team piled up 1,356 points with Ida Mae Bahner ranking first with 478 points. Eileen Bahner scored 443 points with Ruth Riley making 435. The individuals of this team received a blue and two red ribbons respectively.

In competition with teams from 1 other counties, the good preparation team ranked fourth. Judging on this team were Bonnie Correl (Van Natta 4-H) ranking 30th with 421 points and getting a white ribbon: Betty Walk (Hughesville 4-H) was third with 530 points and a blue ribbon: Connie Brandhorst (Smelser 4-H) was 14th with 465 points and a red ribbon.

The clothing judging, the team in competition with 14 teams, placed 10th. Judging were Joyce Ives (Pacific 4-H), ranked 13th with a red ribbon, Barbara Reid (Prairie Ridge 4-H), ranked 31st, with a red ribbon, and Mary Hayes (Prairie Ridge 4-H), 35th with a white ribbon.

In the agricultural judging division of the district contests, the vegetable judging team tied for second out of five counties. Judging on the team were Grace Schneider, Don Welliver and James Ellis. Grace Schneider (South Abell 4-H) ranked fifth with 470 points and a blue ribbon. Don Welliver was seventh with 455 points and a red ribbon. James Ellis ranked eighth with 440 points and a red ribbon.

The livestock judging team placed fourth in competition with 12 teams. This was a very stiff contest as there were only 30 points different in the top four teams. The three boys judging compiled a score of 1,301 points. Glenn Stockstill (South Abell 4-H) was sixth with blue ribbon, Clinton Reid (Prairie Ridge) was 16th and received a r ed ribbon. George Fairfax ranked 20th with 410 points and a red ribbon.

The dairy judging team was ineligible for competition since one member, C. H. Williams, was unable to judge. However, Jimmy Monsees and R. D. Kahrs of Smithton 4-H ranged 18th and 16th with totals of 493 and 660 respectively. Jimmy won a white award while R. D. received a red award.

Sparkman Says Ike Gives Away GOP Platform

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)—Sen. John J. Sparkman, heading east today after an intensive campaign tour in California, told Long Beach Democrats yesterday that Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower is "giving away the Republican platform at the rate of one issue a day."

The Democratic nominee for vice president said Eisenhower is now plugging for better social security than exists under the Democratic administration. Sparkman added that, however, two years ago in Houston, Tex. Eisenhower compared social security to enslavement.

Speaking at a luncheon of Democrats, the Alabama senator referred to the appearance of the Republican presidential nominee in Atlanta, Ga. Tuesday. Sparkman said he "doubted there were 1,000 votes" for the GOP ticket among the 100,000 citizens who turned out for the Eisenhower appearance.

"We don't get to see many five-star generals down south," said Sparkman. "In fact, we don't get to see many Republicans."

At a press conference Sparkman said he stands "exactly with Stevenson (his running mate) on civil rights matters."

"That is," he said, "that it is the responsibility of all levels of government to protect the basic rights of all citizens."

He said that civil rights are bound up with economic welfare and that "when the country is prosperous as it is now, the basic differences are not serious."

Ambassador, Senator Swim Asia to Europe

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP)— An American ambassador and a senator can tell the home folks they swam from Europe to Asia — but they can't claim any distance record. They picked a spot on the Bosporus Strait, where the continents are a half mile apart.

The currents there are swift and tricky, however. So it was something of a feat for Ambassador George McGhee and Sen. Russell B. Long (D-La).

Others paddling along were Mrs. McGhee, two McGhee children, Marcia, 12, and George, 10, and Mrs. Martha Hunt of Washington, D. C., the ambassador's private secretary. A rowboat accompanied each swimmer.

They made the crossing near McGhee's summer home.

Happy Ending to Korea-bound GI's Search for Sweetheart

NEW YORK —(AP)— There was a somewhat happy ending today to a Korea-bound Marine's last weekend here.

Marine Sgt. Hugh E. Kidd Jr., 22, Baton Rouge, La., came here to propose marriage to pretty Patricia Hayes, 20, a switchboard operator. It was his last chance before leaving for Korea.

But despite all his efforts he was unable to find her. Finally, dejected, he had to return to his base, Camp Lejeune, N. C.

Yesterday, however, he received good news: She has promised to wait for him.

The young Marine, who first met the Bronx brunette while she was visiting her sister's home in Baton Rouge a year ago, drove from his camp to New York last Saturday.

He didn't find Miss Hayes at her Bronx home, and on a neighbor's advice went off to Boston to hunt her at a relative's. He made hundreds of calls to Boston Hayeses without finding her, and finally started back to camp on Monday.

Yesterday Miss Hayes returned home — not from Boston, but from Lawrence Harbor, N. J., where she and some girls had a vacation cottage. She found a note from Kidd. It ended:

"Goodbye and God bless you. I'll see you in a year or so or never."

Miss Hayes tried for hours to reach Kidd by long distance telephone. Her employer gave her the day off and let her make her calls from his switchboard. She had no success.

For four more hours, she tried to telephone him from the New York Herald Tribune office.

Minutes after she left the newspaper's office, reporter Judith Crist reached the sergeant by telephone. He said he was leaving for a port of embarkation Friday and added:

"I hope she'll wait. I was going to ask her to marry me. I guess if she were sensible she'd have said no, but I can keep hoping she'd have said yes."

Miss Hayes was too confused by the situation to make a clear decision.

"I guess I'll wait out the year, or however long he'll be gone."

McCarthy Hits At Stevenson As Opens Race

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Sen. Joseph McCarthy launched his drive for re-election last night with a fierce attack on Gov. Adlai Stevenson, the Democratic presidential nominee.

At the same time McCarthy, one of the prime targets of Democrats in the national election campaign, told listeners, "I need your votes next Tuesday. I need them badly."

The time for carrying his speech over 31 Wisconsin radio stations elapsed before McCarthy struck at Stevenson for what he called the Illinois governor's "all out" support of Alger Hiss, convicted of perjury for denying he has passed State Department secrets to Whittaker Chambers.

"Mr. Stevenson, you went out of your way to berate me," McCarthy told his overflow audience at suburban Shorewood.

"You swore to your almighty God that Alger Hiss has a reputation for truthfulness—you say McCarthy is a liar.

"You swore under oath that Hiss has an outstanding reputation for integrity—you say McCarthy has no integrity.

"You swore under oath that Alger Hiss is a great American—you say McCarthy is un-American.

"Well, after your record is given the American people, if they want you, they can have you. I don't think they do."

McCarthy's campaign was delayed by major surgery in July and he has been recuperating in Northern Wisconsin before taking active part in the hot state campaign. His principal opponent in the Sept. 9 primary is Leonard Schmitt, attorney, of Merrill Wis., who has been holding radio talkathons in the state.

"This is a close fight," McCarthy said. "It is an important fight to the finish. Let me assure you I need your votes next Tuesday. I need them badly."

David Miller Proud of Wee House Now In Yard of Home

No woman was ever more proud of the new house she has always wanted and finally got, than is David Miller, 18 months old, who Tuesday had delivered to his home and set up in his backyard a wee Wadsworth playhouse. He received the house as a gift at the recent State Fair.

It seemed to David that the men were slow in erecting it and when it got to the roof he felt he should help. He climbed on an orange crate and tried to show them how to put it on.

His cousin, Mike Wingate, 521 West 11th, who is three years old, thinks it is quite a house, too. But Judith, Mike's little sister, three months old, is just so tiny — she isn't even interested. Judith, however, will grow to like it and if the little boys are thrilled over it, what a joy it will be to a little girl. Of course it is David's house, but he will gladly share it with his cousins and little friends.

David is the son of Mr. and Mrs. David R. Miller and the family lives at the home of David's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Schlichting. The fact is that granddaddy and grandmother are having as much fun over the little house as David and Mike.

The outside of the house is attractive with conventional siding and two coats of white paint. Shutters, trellis, flower planter and shingled roof are trimmed in red, blue and green. The inside of the house is finished with red plywood paneled walls. The Wee House is six feet wide, eight feet long, five and one-half feet tall. And another wonderful thing about it, thinks Mike, is the floor—covered with Hop Along Cassidy print linoleum. It is complete even to a door knocker.

David likes to go inside the house and lean out the window. It's fun to stay in the little house and look out at the grown-ups who are too big to get in it. "This is one time," muses David, "I can do as I please. It is my house and I can muss it up if I want to."

Vet Awaits Charge He Killed Girl

LAWRENCEVILLE, Ill. (AP) — A 25-year-old partially deaf Army veteran waited to be formally charged today in the school-room slaying of his ex-sweetheart after calmly telling police authorities how he fired seven bullets into her body.

Sheriff Garrel Burgoon said Charles Petrach of Gary, Ind., related the fatal shooting last night while officers took down his admission on a wire recorder.

The victim in the tragedy that ended a campus romance was Miss Georgine Lyon of near Madison, Ind., a librarian at the Lawrenceville High School.

The shooting occurred in a classroom where the young couple were alone. Some 700 students were attending classes in nearby rooms but none apparently heard the shots. Her body was discovered in the empty class room by a faculty member shortly after lunch yesterday.

Petrach said he and Miss Lyon had been engaged, but that the pretty 25-year-old brunette recently returned his ring. He gave no explanation for the slaying other than it resulted from a "blasted romance."

Sheriff Burgoon said Petrach carried a picture of Miss Lyon in his billfold along with an Oscar Wilde quotation: "Each man kills the thing he loves."

Burgoon said Petrach, whose hearing was partially impaired as the result of an injury while he served with an Army demolition team, gave the following account:

He came to Lawrenceville yesterday morning by taxi from nearby Vincennes, Ind. He went to the high school to talk with Miss Lyon about their broken romance, but when he saw he couldn't patch up their engagement he pulled out a .22-caliber revolver and shot her, leaving her body on the floor.

Petrach, who said he and Miss Lyon met while students at Ball State Teachers College at Muncie, Ind., was picked up by Burgoon shortly after the body was discovered as he hitch-hiked eastward on U. S. Highway 50.

New Recess Taken Today In Truce Talks

MUNSAN, Korea (AP) — Korean armistice negotiators today ended one recess and called another after the U. N. Command suggested that the Communists really don't want to end the fighting.

The delegates met for 51 minutes at Panmunjom in their first session since Aug. 27. No progress was reported. The Reds agreed to a U.N. request for a recess until Sept. 12, the sixth straight recess in the on-again, off-again talks.

Maj. Gen. William K. Harrison, senior Allied negotiator, told the Communists, "There is a widely held suspicion that you do not desire an armistice and that your negotiations are mere camouflage to conceal your real purpose to continue the conflict."

"If this suspicion ultimately proves to be true," Harrison added, "the world will have discovered once and again and beyond any doubt the futility of attempting to negotiate with Communists on any reasonable and honorable grounds."

Harrison charged that the unyielding Communist stand on the truce-blocking issue of prisoner exchange shows "that you are cruelly indifferent to your people or that you are mere puppets of alien Communist rulers, obedient to your masters' commands."

North Korean Gen. Nam Il, chief Red negotiator, retorted that Harrison was attempting to sow discord between the Chinese and Korean Communists.

The Communists demand return of 116,000 Allied-held prisoners, including all 20,000 Chinese. The U. N. nas offered to return 83,000, including 6,400 Chinese, insisting that the 87,000 other prisoners don't want to rejoin communism.

Plastic Lenses Replace Those Lost by Cataracts

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

CHICAGO (AP) — Little plastic lenses are being put into human eyes, replacing eye lenses lost through cataracts.

Dr. Harold Ridley of London, England, reported this new step today to the International College of Surgeons.

Cataracts are a cloudiness over the eye lens. They reduce vision, or blind.

The eye specialist takes out the clouded lens, and substitutes a little disc of a clear, pure plastic.

The lightweight plastic almost floats in the eye, and the patient doesn't feel it there. It is held in place by the iris, which is a muscle, and a membrane in back of the normal lens. The plastic lens does the same job.

There is no distortion in vision, and no need for thick cataract spectacles that magnify highly, Dr. Ridley said. The patient can move his eyes to see things at his side. he can see through the plastic lens as soon as bandages are removed.

In three years, Dr. Ridley has done 65 of the lens substitutions, and other doctors elsewhere have done some.

Describing 47 of his patients, Dr. Ridley said 13 have normal vision, and 26 others nearly normal vision. Vision is under par in the other eight. Three persons have plastic lenses in both eyes.

Plastic tubes can sometimes substitute for part of the human esophagus or gullet damaged by cancer or other disease, said Dr. Edgar F. Berman of Mt. Sinai Hospital, Baltimore.

Strips of tubing four to nine inches long have bridged sections of diseased gullets removed in operations on 30 persons in the last two years, he said. The plastic tube may remain in permanently, or be removed after being surrounded by growth of a fibrous sheath.

Scholar, 72, Takes 2,000-Mile Hike, Ends With Mountain Climb

MILLINOCKET, Me (AP)—An elderly umbrella-toting scholar finished a summer-long hike on the 2,000-mile Appalachian trial yesterday by marching up and then down Maine's Mt. Katahdin in a windy rainstorm.

"I'm not tired—I could start back again," said 72-year-old retired Temple University Professor George S. Miller.

Miller carried the umbrella and a 25-pound pack on his dawn-to-dusk mountain climb.

Miller said he started in Georgia last April 18 and traveled on foot all the way here except for a ferry trip across the Hudson River. Next year, he said, he hopes to tour the South and Middle West.

For seven years, the trio have resisted all inducements to surrender. Kyodo News Service said the new attempt will be a major peace offensive.

The surrender mission will distribute leaflets, newspapers, letters and photographs from families of the three. They also will play tape recordings from the families telling the holdouts the war is over — come home.

Tigers Again Keep Indians From Pennant

By RALPH RODEN
AP Sports Writer

There's a growing fear in the hearts of Cleveland's baseball fans today that history is about to repeat.

Last year Cleveland won 17 games and lost only five to Detroit's fifth-place Tigers—but three of those defeats came late in September and knocked the Indians out of pennant contention.

The Tigers are worse off this year. They appear a cinch to finish last for the first time in their American League history but when the Indians furnish the opposition the Tigers act ferocious.

Cleveland started off by winning its first four meetings from the Tigers but since then they have managed to take only five out of 11 from Fred Hutchinson's charges.

They bit the dust again Wednesday night, 11-8, blowing a chance to cut the New York Yankees' 3½-game lead. The Yanks were stymied, 3-0, behind the one-hit pitching of Philadelphia's Harry Byrd. In other games, Washington smeared the relling Boston Red Sox, 9-2, and Chicago edged St. Louis, 1-0.

Brooklyn kept its cozy eight-game National League edge over the New York Giants, nipping Boston, 6-5, while New York nosed out Philadelphia, 4-3, in 10 innings. St. Louis brushed by Chicago, 6-1, and Cincinnati downed Pittsburgh, 1-0, in remaining games.

Lefty Dick Littlefield of the Browns held the White Sox to two hits but one of them was Sam Mele's 13th homer in the seventh inning and it cost him the game.

The Chicago Cubs tagged Gerry Staley for 12 hits but the Cardinal righthander coasted to his 16th victory with a 6-1 bulge in two innings.

Professional Tennis Not Now Gold Mine for Money Players

FOREST HILLS, N. Y. (AP)—Professional tennis as a big money proposition is as dead as vaudeville at the moment, and it is destined to remain so until either Frank Sedgman or Ken McGregor, or both, decide to cast their lot with Jack Kramer on a world tour.

Jack now is the only promoter left in the field, largely because he is the only player in the pack who would figure to draw big money in a series of matches against the two Australian artists.

Kramer is attending the National Amateur Championships and giving Sedgman and McGregor a big hello each time he sees them, but he has no hope of bagging either player at least until after they have helped defend the Davis Cup at Adelaide next winter. They have had his proposition for some eight months now and there's nothing more Kramer can do.

"I've decided this much," he said. "In this game it's either got to be something big or it's not worth fooling with. Sure. I could continue to bounce around the country playing one-night stands with one of the other fellows ad picking up a little steady money, but it's not worth while. I want to do it big or not at all, and you know as much as I do about what Frank and Ken intend to do."

As to that, the only thing for sure is that Sedgman backed himself into a very awkward position when he accepted that $12,600 wedding present from Australians fans in return for not signing up with Kramer immediately after the Davis Cup matches at Sydney last December. He doesn't say so, but we somehow get the impression every time we talk with him that he wishes he had remained his own master.

If he turns pro now he will be a goner in his own country. The Aussies would never forgive him. A professional athlete, in any case, does not enjoy the standing in Australia that he does in this country, and Sedgman would be doubly damned as an ingrate. Kramer's best bet, probably, is to guarantee the youngster American citizenship.

Durocher Gets New Contract for 1953

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Giants gave Manager Leo Durocher a vote of confidence today by signing him to manage the club again in 1953.

Although terms were not announced, it is believed Durocher will receive about $65,000, the same as he reportedly received this year following the Giants' pennant triumph in 1951.

Durocher succeeded Mel Ott at the helm in July of 1948.

Despite injuries and losses of key players, Durocher kept the Giants close on the heels of the league-leading Dodgers until mid-August.

Today the Giants trail the Brooks by eight games. A year ago, the fast moving New Yorkers were six games behind the Dodgers.

ASCAP Lists Works

NEW YORK (AP) — The ASCAP Index of 1952 — two large volumes containing copyright information on some 100,000 of the more familiar musical works whose performing rights are in the ASCAP repertory — has been compiled by the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers. This is said to be the largest work of its kind ever prepared by a performing right society.

An ASCAP spokesman said that this is not to be regarded as a complete catalog of ASCAP works, for such a work would embrace several times the listings in these two large volumes. The contents of the printed volumes have been compiled from the performance records of the Society.

ASCAP, organized in 1914, now has a membership of more than 3,000 composers, authors and publishers in practically every state and territory of the U.S., and a few members now are living abroad.

Early Season Injuries Cut Big 7 Squads

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Those early-season injuries are plaguing Big Seven conference coaches with practice sessions just barely underway.

Practically every squad had athletes on the handicap list at the end of Wednesday's workouts.

Eight Kansas Jayhawks nursed injuries, including Co-Capt. Charlie Hoag, the team's No. 1 halfback. He had a twisted knee but probably can return to action in a day or two.

Another top back, Veryl Switzer of Kansas State, worked out in sweat clothes. He and center August Keller were slightly hurt earlier in the week at Manhattan.

Roger Nelson, first string Oklahoma guard, favored a weak ankle and did light work at Norman where coach Bud Wilkinson put four teams through their first stiff scrimmage.

Missouri also had its first rough workout and half a dozen players went limping off the field. Two of the more severly injured were Harold Thomaczek, defensive back who twisted a knee and Jack Brase, sophomore quarterback, who hurt his ankle.

There were some cheerful notes around the circuit, however.

Coach Bill Glassford indicated his Nebraska Cornhuskers were showing progress in downfield blocking, perhaps their weakest point last season. The Cornhuskers had two scrimmage sessions at Lincoln Wednesday.

K-State coach Bill Meeks also complimented his squad's downfield blocking.

At Colorado, coach Dal Ward spoke favorably of Carroll Hardy's possibilities. Ward said he expected outstanding work at the halfback spot from Hardy, a sophomore.

Durocher Says His Giants Can Overhaul Bums

NEW YORK (AP) — Leo Durocher bravely proclaims in public that his New York Giants can overhaul the runaway Brooklyn Dodgers.

Privately, however, the dapper little manager, who Wednesday signed to lead the Giants again in 1953, is looking forward to next year.

"We haven't given up by a long shot," he insists, "not until they can show me in black and white that we're mathematically eliminated."

Leo, however, knows that only a miracle, even bigger than the one that brought the National League flag to the Giants last year, is needed. And he is not counting on it. He knows his team, handicapped by injuries to Monte Irvin and Sal Maglie and the loss of Willie Mays to the service, is not good enough to pull off another miracle. So he is resigned to "wait until next year."

Pearl Industry Needs Help

TOKYO (AP) — With the help of government subsidies, Japan's pearl industry hopes to reach its prewar level of exports by 1958. Exports now are about 131,200 ounces a year, or one-third of the prewar output.

Johnny DeFazio Keeps Fight Going, Loses to Flanagan

CLEVELAND (AP)—Johnny (Red) De Fazio furnished the momentum to keep the fight going, but Del Flanagan won the decision Wednesday night after 10 rounds.

De Fazio, 151 pounds and from Bayonne, N. J., carried the fight to his lighter opponent steadily until the seventh round. Although he frequently landed a good left to Flanagan's body, the St. Paul puncher outboxed him handily.

And in the seventh, the 146½-pound winner clipped De Fazio over the left eye with a stiff right. That opened a cut and from then on Flanagan was in control.

There were no knockdowns.

The decision was unanimous. Flanagan won once before on a decision at Minneapolis, but that was split and disputed. The two fought to a draw once before.

Only 1,034 turned out for the contest, the smallest crowd ever attending a show promoted by Cleveland's Larry Atkins. The bouts were televised nationally, but blacked out locally.

Gil Turner To Box Own Way Friday

NEW YORK, (AP) — Gil Turner is going to fight his own way Friday night against power-punching Bobby Dykes in Madison Square Garden.

That means the perpetual motion fighting machine from Philadelphia is going to throw punches from the opening bell and keep tossing leather as long as he can stand.

It also means that the 21-year old Negro is going to be wide open for one of the fastest and hardest hitters in the welterweight division.

The bookmakers believe the once-beaten Philadelphian can win if he follows through on his plan. They've made him a 9 to 5 favorite to whip the stringbean six-footer from Texas on the theory that if he keeps driving in, long-armed Bobby won't have the necessary fighting room to unlimber his big guns.

"Gil is not alibing his knockout loss to Kid Gavilan last July," said Turner's manager, George Katz. "He lost, and that's that. The kid always has done whatever Willie (trainer Willie Reddish) and I asked him to do.

"Against Gavilan, we told him to pace himself. We, and a lot of others, though Gavilan was through and that Gil could take the title with a fast finish in the last five rounds. Gil paced himself for the first ten. At the start of the 11th he said he felt just as good as he did after the first round.

"So we sent him out with instructions to go after Gavilan," continued Katz. "You know what happened. Gavilan nailed him. Gil was downcast. 'I let you and my friends down.' That's all he had to say that night.

"But just the other day he took me for a car ride and said he had something on his mind."

"George," he said. "You know I've always done what you and Willie wanted me to. You wanted me to pace myself against Gavilan and I tried to. But if you don't mind, from now on I'd like to fight it my own way. I'm sure if I kept throwing all the way against Gavilan I would have beaten him. I didn't tell you before, but trying to pace myself hurt my style. I know I could have thrown punches for three minutes in every round. I'd like to do just that against Dykes.'

"I told him 'Okay, go ahead.'

Some 4-F May Have to Be Drafted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Selective Service Director Lewis B. Hershey says some men presently rejected as "4-F's" will have to be tapped to help meet the armed forces' manpower needs of 1,200,000 men during the coming year.

"From the "4-F" group x x x and other sources xx x is where we will have to find our people," Hershey said in a talk to the 60th annual meeting of the American Psychological Association last night. He offered no amplification of the "other sources."

In the same speech, Hershey charged psychologists with some of the responsibility for the fact that 400,000 men so far have been rejected for military service for failure to pass the armed forces qualifications tests. Those are tests designed to measure educational and other mental capacities but have nothing to do with measuring emotional stability, Hershey said.

Browns Can't Win When Get Into Chicago

By The Associated Press

The St. Louis Browns, who have played better than .500 ball at their own Sportsman's Park, just can't win for losing on the road. Especially when the road leads to Chicago.

In seven tries for victory at Comiskey Park, the Browns have met with seven failures. The latest disappointment came Wednesday night despite the two-hit pitching of Dick Littlefield, making his first start since coming to the Browns last month as part of the Ned Garver-Vic Wertz deal with Detroit's Tigers.

Littlefield's only mistake was a home run pitch to Sam Mele that gave the White Sox a 1-0 triumph.

Manager Marty Marion called Littlefield's effort "one of the best pitched games we've had this season," but the Browns left eight base runners stranded while knocking Sal Rogovin for seven hits.

It was Littlefield's fourth defeat against no successes.

At Sportsman's Park Wednesday night Gerry Staley of the St. Louis Cardinals pitched a somewhat less spectacular game against the Chicago Cubs, but had no difficulty claiming victory No. 16 in a 6-1 decision.

Staley, who has lost 12, gave up 12 hits, but left nine Cubs on base while fanning five and walking none.

The Cards got the job done early, scoring four runs in the first and two more in the second off starter Bob Schultz and Turk Lown.

Solly Hemus, Card shortstop, was twice hit by pitched balls to run his season total to 19, tying a modern National League record.

'Subs' Off Alaska May Be Whales

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — The "submarines" reported off the Alaska coast may have been Beluga whales, the Alaska command indicated today.

Reports from Nome, in northern Alaska across the Bering strait from Siberia, told yesterday of unidentified objects within one or two miles of shore. The Air Force base there had been alerted, the reports said.

The Alaska command said its investigation showed:

"1. There is a normal state of activity at the Nome base, (this was interpreted by the public information officer to mean there was no alert);

"2 There have been reports of unidentified objects;

"3. Our evaluation indicates there are no submarines;

"4. Beluga whales are known to frequent these waters."

The navy in Washington also received the report of unidentified submarines. The Navy said it looked into the report and plans no further action.

A spokesman said investigation of the reported contact "revealed that no conclusions are practicable."

During their period of maximum growth, young birds may eat more than their weight in one day.

Nests of many birds are built in the six-day period required for forming and developing the first egg.

No Major Increase In Polio Incidence

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Public Health Service, which a week ago reported a record outbreak of polio across the country, announced today that there has been no major change in the incidence of the disease.

Last week, the agency reported a total of 3,503 new cases in the 48 states, the heaviest outbreak in any week in the history of the agency's survey.

Only 44 states sent in reports for the survey announced today and these states listed a total of 3,168 cases for the week. The same 44 states reported 3,180 cases a week ago.

'Suitable' Memorial, To Cost $2,000, Will Be Placed for Dog

CHICAGO (AP)—A "suitable" $2,000 memorial was authorized today for a 12-pound Pomeranian dog that died fighting off a big bull terrier that attacked a man.

The memorial and perpetual cemetery care was stipulated in the will of the dog's owner, Mrs. Ida L. Virtue, 75, who died Aug. 12.

The courageous Pomeranian, Sonny Boy, was killed defending a relative of Mrs. Virtue, Oliver J. Edwards.

Mrs. Virtue, a widow, left an estate of about $100,000.

A physician who examined him said he didn't have a scratch.

New Ears Made From Knees Now Seen by Surgeons

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

CHICAGO (AP)—New ears made from knees were described today to the International College of Surgeons.

The ear is fashioned around a piece of cartilage, shaped like a half-moon, taken from a joint in the knee. It supplies a natural half-moon shape for the ear.

The knee cartilage is obtained from knees lost through amputations, or taken during surgery to six "trick" knees.

The cartilage is quick-frozen and kept in a bone bank until the plastic surgeon needs it to build a near ear to replace one lost by accident, or to give ears to children born without them.

Skin is grafted around the cartilage to form the artificial ear.

The cartilage supplies a soft, flexible, normal-feeling ear, said Dr. Leslie H. Backus, University of Buffalo Medical School.

New ears also can be made from rib cartilage, or from things like ivory, rubber or plastics.

None give perfect ears because of difficulties in grafting skin to give all the contours of an ear. The artificial ears are far better than none. They don't affect hearing, for ability to hear depends upon the inner ear.

Kindergarten Makes Or Breaks Man, It's Garden of Children

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Kindergarten is what makes or breaks a man.

Millions of future little American husbands, trudging to school for the first time, will learn that this month.

A kindergarten is a "garden of children." But it is also a wilderness where small two-legged bits of protoplasm—part elf, part demon, part angel—speed up their sad and wonderful transformation into human beings.

It separates the boys from the girls, and sets them forever upon their separate paths. There a young fellow will meet and have to try to cope with all the adventures he will encounter in later life — love and loss, victory and and disaster, achievement and failure, pride and fall, and golden friendship, ever betrayed, ever rekindled.

That these adventures are small-scale makes them no less affect-to the half-pint denizens of this classroom. A mouse gets as much fun from a piece of cheese as an elephant does from a ton of hay, and a headache hurts him as much.

So it is with children. The kindergarten which seems to envious grownups a lost Eden is to the small fry a kind of battlefield. The wounds they receive there are immortal: First scars are longest remembered.

Looking back on my own kindergarten days, however, I find that is the only period of my life I would truly wish to relive. This is not because it was an altogether happy time, for it was not that. I don't recall weathering any despair deeper than I knew at one time or another in kindergarten. Nor reaching any higher peaks of joy.

The fine thing then was that any emotion I went through had a poignancy never attained later. I savored even my moods of despondency almost as much as my rainbow pleasures. A child enjoys his self-pity because he feels nobody in the history of the world has been so put upon. When he grows older he knows this isn't so, and that robs him of most of the fun of feeling sorry for himself.

In college a fellow picks up a lot of detailed knowledge, but it is in kindergarten that he learns the basic principles that will guide him through life. Here are a few I learned the hard way:

1. If you don't like to doff your cap to older people to be polite, don't wear a cap.

2. Never hit a person of the opposite sex when she's down, even if she is bigger than you—and particularly when somebody is looking.

3. Don't lend your last marble, because if you do you won't have anything left to play the game yourself.

4. Never tell all you know. (I made the mistake of confiding to a pal I had a crush on a little girl in kindergarten—a talented creature, she could toe-dance at five. The next day even the big bullies in the second grade were teasing me about it, and I had to call off the whole affair.)

5. Don't brag about your galloping.

In our kindergarten galloping was a high art, and I was the best. (I still think so!) One day while we were wheeling around the room . . .gallop . . . gallop . . . gallop . . . I called over to the teacher, who was pounding the piano. "Look at me, Mrs. Steele, look at me now!" . . .

Just then my flying foot hooked the big flat hoof of a red-haired little filly ahead of me, and down she went on her fat little face—and up again she came in tears, with both fists swinging. I don't recall ever galloping in public since.

Yes, a wise man can learn most of what he needs to know about life in kindergarten.

Horticulture Display Has New Varieties

Gorgeous collections of fruits and vegetables on spacious tables located in the newly painted Agricultural Building were one of the major attractions of the 1952 Missouri State Fair.

Size in peaches had been reduced according to H. G. Swartwout, superintendent, Columbia, but flavor was perfect according to many people in the Administration building, who sampled the fruits.

Watermelons and cantaloupes were plentiful. The exhibits were larger than usual and the two judges had plenty of work till the ribbons were placed.

Aubrey D. Hibbard judged the fruits and Clyde Cunningham, the vegetables. Both are from Columbia.

One large table of new melon varieties from the experiment farms of University of Missouri was of considerable interest to fair visitors.

Phillips Selling America With Three Million Coins

S. J. PHILLIPS: Out of a birthplace, opportunity.

By NEA Service

BOOKER WASHINGTON BIRTHPLACE, Va. — Big and little people of America are quietly giving their backing and support to a thin, unassuming man from Booker Washington Birthplace in his self-initiated campaign to sell Americanism.

He is S. J. Phillips, a slightly graying Negro, who has talked with Presidents, governors, congressmen, and industrial leaders. And he has won them all over to his unshakable conviction that this country is a land of "Freedom and Opportunity for All" — that the underprivileged Negroes should be convinced of this through simple education and visible examples.

As a result, Congress has enacted a special act authorizing the minting of 3,000,000 Carver-Washington commemorative half dollars and given the organization he founded, "Booker T. Washington Birthplace Memorial," exclusive rights to sell them at a $2 premium.

Without fees or commission upwards of 1600 banks representing every state in the Union are selling the new coins for the Memorial organization because they believe in his objective and philosophy.

Phillips' conviction, which virtually all state governors, industrial leaders and scores of United States senators and congressmen have endorsed in personal letters to him, is simply this:

Make it possible for the underprivileged Negro masses to take advantage of America's opportunities and you remove the danger of communism sprouting in that segment of our population.

To accomplish that Phillips' organization uses the proceeds of the coin sales to help the underprivileged Negroes obtain basic education and vocational training at a non-profit school near the Booker T. Washington Birthplace.

Phillips' focal point for his work is the farm on which Booker T. Washington was born a slave. It was through his efforts that the place has been built into headquarters for this service program to perpetuate the teachings of Booker T. Washington.

And it was Phillips, too, who prevailed upon the government to recognize the birthplace as a regular United States post office. Within four months after that designation, he had raised its rating from fourth class to second class.

COMMEMORATIVE: Half dollar carries Phillips' message.

Convinced that education can best be obtained by practical example, his organization offered "opportunity" classes at the birthplace for Negroes unable to pay for schooling. They work one day and go to vocational classes the next.

Despite the responsibility of the Birthplace farm (it now numbers more than 500 acres) Phillips also finds time to help carry on farm demonstration work in Georgia, another phase of his self-help service program for those of America's 15,000,000 Negroes who lack opportunities to improve themselves.

And between times, he supervises the sale of coins by mail from the birthplace, where collector sets — one from each of the Denver, Philadelphia, and San Francisco mints — are sold for $10 a set.

FACE ON THE BARRED-ROOM FLOOR—Robert Miller, 23, of Cassopolis, Mich., finds it isn't so easy to escape from jail. Miller, who attempted to squeeze under his cell door, was pinned to the floor for over twelve hours. Sheriff R. Edgar Probst, of Cassopolis, left, and Fire Chief Donald Rhoades, right, finally had to cut the imprisoning bars with an acetylene torch to free Miller so they could put him back in jail.

'Possum Caught Playing Possum

NEWARK, N. J. (AP)—Neighborhood housewives had been worried recently by unexplained midnight pantry raids and garbage can forays.

The mystery was solved with the capture of a 'possum on the steps of a local hotel. The captor, Samuel Brantley, owner of the hotel, used to hunt 'possum in his younger days in Georgia.

Whne Brantley seized the animal by the throat the unlucky 'possum way playing possum.

Moniteau Co. Farmers Pick PMA Leaders

TIPTON—Delegates from each of the seven townships of Moniteau County, David Calhoun, G. A. Simpson, Raymond Marshall, George F. Gross, Dean Rohrbach, Harold Gerhart and Merlyn Hays met at the office of the Moniteau County Production and Marketing Administration on Saturday morning to elect the committee to administer the 1953 Farm Program.

Ross Tising of High Point was re-elected chairman, Golden Vaughan, Clarksburg, vice-chairman, and Merida Witzke, California, member. Alternates are William Haldiman and Lewis Short, Enon.

All of the committeemen are farmers. Committeemen will take office immediately and will be responsible for the county administration of the Agricultural Conservation Program, price support activities, and other activities which may be assigned.

In the coming year they will arrange for the training of community committeemen, direct the farm-by-farm contacts which community commiteemen will make, and have responsibility for approval of conservation practices carried out on Moniteau County farms.

Ross Tising, the chairman, owns and operates a farm at High Point. Major farm products are hay, seed, small grain and beef cattle. He has been cooperating in the Agricultural Conservation Program since 1933. This year he is adding lime and rock phosphate to carry out the soil and water conservation practices to add to the productivity of his farm.

The vice-chairman's farm is located at Clarksburg where he produces hay, pasture and grain. He, too, is carrying out soil and water conservation practices on his farm.

Mr. Witke's farm is located near Latham, where he follows a hay and grain rotation.

Farmers in all of Moniteau County's seven townships voted for community committeemen to carry out program activities at the local level. These men and the townships they represent are as follows:

Burris Fork—Roy Enloe, David Calhoun, and Ward Groom.

Harrison—Lewis Short, G. A. Simpson, Marvin Phillips.

Linn — Raymond Marshall, George Klatt, and Tony Stock.

Moreau—George F. Gross, Floyd Copas, and J. C. Martin.

Pilot Grove—Earl Dean Rohrbach, Harold Moore and Harold Jenkins.

Walker—Harold Gerhart, John Haldiman and Victor Schlup.

Willow Fork — Merlyn Hays, Walker Schmidt, Archie Morlock.

Odds and Ends By News Staff

It had been a wonderful day fishing when the Sedalia couple pulled up to the bank of a stream with a nice boat load of big fish. About that time a man came up, looked the fish over, counted them and everything seemed to be all right. Then he asked to see their fishing licenses and, with an air of satisfaction, the woman whipped out her license which was all fixed up in a little case.

"For 15 years," she said proudly, "I have bought a fishing license and nobody has ever asked to see it until now. I have always been at the top was the word "Hunting" instead of "Fishing."

The man took the license and looked at it.

"Yes," he said, "I can see the description fits you, but you should have another license."

The young woman looked at him bewildered.

"There can't be anything wrong," she said. "I just bought it yesterday."

"That's right," said the man. "The date is all right on it, but it still doesn't give you permission to fish. This is a hunting license."

That was one time the fisherwoman was speechless. She looked at the license and her mouth flew open. Sure enough, in big letters at the top was the world "Lunting" instead of "fishing."

The man never smiled.

"Well," he said, "it is quite a little ways down to Warsaw and I'm not sure that the jail there is too sanitary. Suppose you get a fishing license and mail it to me. I'll look at it and mail it back."

And that was what she did.

But she has learned one thing. She is never going to sign anything again that she doesn't read first—even to the fine print—because the man who sold her the license had picked up the wrong one without noticing and she had signed it and took it without even looking. But next time she is sure going to look.—H.L.

Americans Enjoy Best Health In History

By Drew Pearson

(Copyright, 1951, By The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

(NOTE TO EDITORS: While Drew Pearson is on a brief vacation, the Washington Merry-Go-Round is being written by several distinguished guest columnists, today's being Dr. Leonard A. Scheele, Surgeon General, Public Health Service, Federal Security Agency).

WASHINGTON — As a nation, we Americans are enjoying the best health in our history. Statistics are cold things — but they are revealing.

Our death rate last year was nine and a half persons for every thousand of our population. In 1900 — only 50 years ago — it was a little over 17 in every thousand. Twenty-odd years ago — in 1925 — it was 11.7.

Perhaps even more revealing are the figures on life expectancy. Children born today have a life expectancy of 68 years. In 1900 life expectancy was only 49. We have, in other words, experienced a gain of nearly 20 years!

How has this come about?

The principal overriding reason is the literally tremendous advance that has been made in medicine and scientific research in the first half of the 20th century. At no time in man's long struggle against disease have comparable gains been recorded.

Because of our better understanding of medical problems, we have greatly improved the health care of our children and youth. Diseases such as diphtheria, typhoid fever, whooping cough, and diarrhea that used to kill tens of thousands of babies and young children every year have fallen under the attack of medical science and public-health practice.

Expectant mothers get much better care during pregnancy and during the birth of their babies than did their mothers and grandmothers. Nearly nine in every ten American babies are born in hospitals, where they have a better chance to survive those crucial first days of life. All the modern equipment and special care is at hand to help many a premature baby pull through who couldn't have made it in earlier years.

"Wonder Drugs"

Clean water, safe milk, improved sanitation, immunization, and better knowledge of infant feeding have been in the forefront in reducing death rates and increasing life expectancy. The average American today knows much about the "Wonder Drugs," penicillin, sulfa, cortisone — all miracles of modern research and medical treatment, but he takes for granted the equally miraculous preventive work of his state and local health departments.

The public-health physicians, dentists, nurses, engineers, sanitarians, and other members of the health team in our states and communities are the heroes — often unsung — who play such a big part in making our homes, communities, and our very lives safer and more healthy. They make it possible for us to drink more milk per capita than any other people in the world — because they keep it safe.

They guard our water supplies and make it possible for us to eat in restaurants, on trains and planes and other public places without giving a thought for their safety. They stand guard against a host of communicable diseases that once afflicted hundreds of thousands, but today rarely occur.

Every community's small investment in public-health work pays enormous dividends. Even the "chills" of malaria — which as recently as 1940 cost our southern states $500,000,000 in sickness, lost time, and low production — have disappeared under the organized public-health attack on mosquitoes.

Because we have conquered so many communicable diseases, we now have more people living to the ages when they are more likely to suffer from such chronic diseases as cancer, arthritis, heart ailments and we need a great deal more research to give us answers to these grave problems.

Our great American philanthropic Foundations, endowed by individuals or families, and our voluntary health agencies, supported by generous public subscription, have leveled large-scale research attacks on many of the chief killers and cripplers of today. The American Cancer Society, for example, is spending over $3,000,000 a year on research. The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis is spending comparable amounts to conquer dread poliomyelitis.

Conquest of Disease

The citizens of our country, through Congress, are determined that their government, too, shall help speed up the conquest of disease. In 1930, Congress created the National Institute of Health in the Public Health Service, and in 1937, a National Cancer Institute.

Since 1945, Congress has created five more national institutes — in mental health, dental research, heart disease, arthritis and the metabolic diseases, and in the neurological diseases and blindness. In these institutes, scientists in many fields are studying the major health problems of today. The Public Health Service also has groups of research workers at Atlanta, Cincinnati, in Montana, Alaska and other places.

Through the grants-in-aid of our institutes, the Public Health Service gives financial assistance to thousands of research workers in universities and other institutions throughout the country.

To cope with the shortage of research scientists, large-scale research-training programs are under way in all of the nation's major teaching and research institutions. Many young scientists receive fellowships from the Public Health Service, the Atomic Energy Commission, and the National Science Foundation. Many more personnel — and much more money — are needed to develop our great fund of unexploited research ideas.

To guide the research programs of the Public Health Service and recommend worth-while projects for research grants, the Congress very wisely created advisory councils composed of distinguished men and women outside of government. Scientists, physicians, and citizens prominent in public life serve on these councils. They are chosen from all parts of the country.

As Surgeon General of the Public Health Service, I can award a research grant only on the recommendation of these councils. This teamwork between citizens and government officials is one of America's great strengths.

New Research Center

For the last four years, all of us in the Public Health Service have been looking forward to the completion of the new 500-bed clinical research center on the grounds of the National Institutes of health. Here, next spring, in Bethesda, Md., near Washington, D.C., we will add clinical research — the study of patients — to our laboratory work.

While we speak of achievements at home and the challenge of the future, we should remember that in many parts of the world the situation is vastly different. More than half the people of the earth suffer from disease annually. Large areas of the earth are educationally, agriculturally and industrially underdeveloped because their populations are ridden with disease.

Man has the knowledge and he has the world health organization and the Point 4 and other technical-assistance programs the framework for moving toward a world in which the released energies of mankind literally can transform the face of the globe. We work toward that goal through the efforts of world health, in my view one of the great challenges of this second half of a notable century.

Emperor's Daughter To Wed a Farmer

TOKYO (AP)—Princess Yori, third daughter of Emperor Hirohito, will be married on Oct. 10 to Takamasa Ikeda, son of a former marquis whose ancestors were the feudal lords of Okayama Province.

The princess is 21. The groom, who is a gentleman farmer managing his father's estate, is 26.

The Emperor and empress and all other members of the imperial family will attend the wedding with the exception of Crown Prince Akihito, 18. No reason was given for the crown prince's absence, which puzzled Japanese newspapers.

NOW that David Carlson was talking, he had stopped shaking and had control of himself. He was in the middle of a violet emotional upset and so I let him talk—it relieved his feelings.

"Anyway, I got Ida off to one side and told her real low, that she had to get rid of that bum," he went on.

"And she says, 'What? And me spend Christmas Eve with a jerk like you, Mister I. Q.?' That was the start of it. She talked so much I've forgotten half of it. She brought you up, and said that Hector Fielding—and added a few things to your name—was making me no fun any more. I was so mad I whopped her in the face with a dish towel. She started to howl and horsed into the living room and told Bobo I hit her. Then he started to sound off. Said I didn't know how to treat a woman and that Ida was fed up with me because I kept my nose in a book all the time.

"Well, we made so much noise the Brodskys downstairs started pounding on the steam pipes, and finally Brodsky himself comes up and knocks on the door and says, 'Quiet down, or I'll call the cops for disturbing the peace.' And as soon as Brodsky was out of sight Ida says to me, 'Now see what you started.' And I was standing in the kitchen right then, and I just all of a sudden got so mad that—well, there was a tomato laying on the drainboard, and I took and threw it at her. It hit her on the side of the face, and she really screeched. Called me every name in the book, and Bobo just stood there wiping the tomato off her with a dish towel. And then Ida goes over and grabs my camera off the shelf and yells, 'See how you like this!' And throws it down on the floor.

"For a minute I couldn't even believe what had happened, and then I walked over and picked up a piece of it, and Bobo hands Ida her coat and says, 'Come on, baby, let's go out and have a beer somewhere till this punk calms down.' And when they got in the hall one of them said something in a low voice and they both started laughing, and they laughed all the way down the stairs.

"So I run out on the landing and hollered to her, 'I'm leaving, do you hear, leaving!' And Brodsky opens his door a crack and says, 'Well, just so you do it quietly.' And Bobo and Ida laugh harder than ever, and I hear them go out the door downstairs.

"I went back inside and picked up my camera and put it in a box, and then I sat down and just held the box awhile. I thought maybe I was going to be sick. I knew I couldn't spend another night under that roof; I hadda leave. So I got a big cardboard box and put my stuff in it. Just my good clothes, mostly, and some pictures and the camera.

• • •

"GOING out the door I remembered the turkey, and I went back and got it, even though it was pretty heavy with the box and all. I got on a street car and went downtown. I didn't know what to do. It was terrible cold, snow blowing, slush underfoot. I'd have gone to a hotel, but I didn't want that turkey to spoil. I went up to a guy on the street and asked him if he'd like a 25-pound turkey, already stuffed, and he musta thought I was drunk or crazy or something. He just said, 'Merry Christmas, yourself,' and walked off.

"So I got on another street car and came out to your house, but when I got here the windows were dark. I stood around on the sidewalk for a long time. I didn't have any idea what time it was. I couldn't phone you. Finally I got so cold, I couldn't hardly stand it—I went ahead and rang the bell."

He fell silent. We sat for awhile watching the orange flames.

Presently I spoke. "David, I'm to blame for this. I've made a mess of your life."

"No!" he protested. "Don't you see, before you started teaching me and helping me improve myself, I didn't have anything to fall back on. I just went around in a fog, like, wondering how I'd ever be able to stand living the rest of my life. I grabbed a-hold of everything that would make me forget who I was and what I was. Now I know which way I'm going. Now I wanta learn more about everything. Because the more you know, seems like, the more you enjoy."

• • •

HE paused, as though to let the significance of this sink in. Then he continued. "Now, things can't ever get me down again to the point where I wanta die. Because no matter what happens, I've got something up here." He tapped his temple with one ailoused finger.

"But look," I insisted, "I stuck my nose in, and, as a result, your marriage is wrecked."

"It was a wreck long before that. Fact is, I was a wreck too. Now I can start living all over again. I hope she divorces me quick. Probably she will, so she can marry Bobo."

"Where will you live?"

"Oh, I'll have to look around for a room, I guess." He sighed and leaned his head back against his clasped hands.

"One of my students is leaving January 1 to take a job," I said. "He lives a block the other side of the Museum. Nice room. Landlady lets him have a hot plate if it hasn't been rented already. I'll do some telephoning tomorrow."

"Swell. Say, got any crackers or anything? I haven't had a thing since lunch, and here it is—why—it's midnight! Merry Christmas!"

I put the Corelli Christmas concerto on the record player and spread a checkered Mexican tablecloth over the coffee table in front of the fire.

U. S. Editors Backing Ike, Say He'll Win

By Peter Edson
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — U. S. daily newspaper editors are supporting Republican Dwight D. Eisenhower for the presidency by a ration of four to one. But approximately one editor in six is supporting neither Eisenhower nor Gov. Adlai Stevenson, the Democratic nominee.

The same majority of the editors believe that General Eisenhower will win the election. An average of their productions gives the Republican nominee a margin of 31 electoral votes — 281 to 250. Two hundred and sixty-six of the 531 electoral votes are necessary for victory.

On the popular vote, editors believe the Republican plurality will be a little over 2,500,000. The average of their predictions is for a total Republican vote of 28,420,000 as against a Democratic vote of 25,420,000.

This would mean a total vote of over 54,000,000 in 1952. It would be considerably above the 48,690,000 votes cast in 1948. But it would be considerably below the 60,000,000 total vote hoped for.

These are the highlights of a poll of the 700 U. S. newspapers receiving this column. The editors of these papers were asked 15 questions on the prospects, trends and issues in the 1952 campaign.

Over 350 editors replied to the questionnaire. This 50 per cent return is considered a good result for this kind of a mail survey of opinion. Replies came from every state in the union and were well-balanced geographically. So the poll gives a good cross-section of editorial opinion two months before the election.

In 1793, the institution of slavery in the United States seemed to be on the wane, but the invention of the cotton gin in that year changed the whole picture and cotton growing, which used large numbers of slaves, was the means of extending slavery and increasing the number of slaves.

The World Today—

Need Foreign Policy Outline

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—A brief and clear statement by President Truman or Secretary of State Acheson on precisely what our foreign policy is would be helpful to everyone's understanding.

Both men have stated that policy in different ways at different times.

Yet, it has been a many-sided, developing policy. Starting with aid to Greece and Turkey, moving on to the Marshall Plan, it went into the Atlantic Pact, arms for Europe, defense of Korea, and huge rearmament.

Now that the policy has been made an issue in the presidential campaign by Gen. Eisenhower and his adviser, John Foster Dulles, it is rapidly getting fogged in semantics.

Acheson indicated at a news conference yesterday he may soon make a statement on foreign policy, although an aide said later he does not think it proper for a secretary of state to get involved in a political campaign.

In general the foreign policy can be said to be this: It's aimed at stopping Russia from going any further or gobbling up any more people. Eisenhower and Dulles, in general, agree with that.

But Eisenhower, in his speech to the American Legion Aug. 25, indicated the policy doesn't go far enough to suit him, although he himself was pretty vague on what he'd do to make it work better.

He said we should tell Russia we'll "never rest" until the people in the satellite nations are freed. Would we go to war to free them if Russia ignored us? He didn't say so. He didn't say how we could free them.

This statement caused concern in Europe and questioning here. Yet Acheson himself had said pretty much the same thing in a speech March 17, 1950, although not speaking as baldly as Eisenhower.

Among steps he said Russia could take to give the rest of the world some reason to believe there might be peace, he suggested Russia withdraw its arms and its pressures from the satellite countries, leaving them independent.

Two days after Eisenhower spoke Dulles undertook to explain what the general meant. He said Eisenhower didn't mean violent revolution in the satellite countries but peaceful revolution, using such "quiet" methods as passive resistance, non-co-operation, discontent, slowdowns, industrial sabotage.

TB Operations Will Cut Out Only Part Of Infected Lungs

CHICAGO (AP)—Tuberculosis operations that cut out only the sick parts of human lungs look promising, two U. S. Navy surgeons said today.

Healthy parts of the lung are saved, and there is little loss of lung function, Capt. Clifford F. Store and Lt. Bruce F. Rothmann of the U. S. Naval Hospital, St. Albans, N. Y., told the International College of Surgeons.

They reported the partial-removal operations on 87 patients during the last four years.

Of 59 discharged from the hospital, 38 are back at work and another 16 are apparently well enough to take jobs soon, they said. Another 25 still are in the hospital, but are apparently well. A few have died.

Vote of Confidence Being Asked by UN For Truce Talkers

LONDON (AP) — The United Nations General Assembly will be asked to give the U. N. truce negotiators at Panmunjom a vote of confidence, informed diplomats said today.

These sources said the 16 countries with troops in Korea will sponsor a resolution in the Assembly, which opens Oct. 14 in New York, reaffirming U. N. support for the Korean War and for the truce talkers. The negotiators are all U. S. military men.

Although the Soviet bloc will undoubtedly vote against the resolution, its sponsors hope to get the overwhelming backing of most other members as a demonstration of U. N. solidarity.

Diplomats here said the resolution is expected to ask for a U. N. endorsement of the negotiators' refusal to return Red prisoners of war who don't want to go home.

The cost of insecticides used by the American farmer is only one-third of 1 per cent of his farm crop value.

Which way

WHETHER YOU SEE EYE-TO-EYE with Adlai or Ike, one thing is certain:

From now till November 4th, you'll want to know how they look at all the big issues . . .

Europe . . . Korea . . . taxes . . . controls . . . income . . . all the problems that reach into your daily life here in our town.

And to help you weigh each candidate day by day as each issue comes to light—you turn to your newspaper. Just as you've turned to it daily for dozens of other reasons since you first learned to read.

For the latest facts . . . for goings-on in our town, our state, our entire world . . . to see what's for fun and what's for sale. Not only what—but where and when and how much it costs.

And in the newspaper we read all about it . . . or only as much as we want. We read any time we choose—any place we choose.

That's why nearly everybody reads the newspaper nearly every day.

• That's why so many people who sell advertised products insist that they be advertised in newspapers.

Because in newspapers an advertising message has a chance to reach all people who can buy. Not just sports fans or quiz fans or music fans or comedy fans . . . but everybody.

That's why all advertisers—both "national" and retail—invest more money in newspapers than in any other form of advertising.

The newspaper is first with the most news . . . first with the most people . . . first with the most advertisers.

The newspaper is always "first with the most"

Green Ridge IOOF Has Scholarship For GRHS Senior

GREEN RIDGE —At the regular meeting of the Green Ridge IOOF lodge the members decided to establish a scholarship for a graduating senior each year from the Green Ridge High School.

The competition is open to any senior graduating next May and the deserving boy or girl will be chosen by the high school faculty. The money will be given toward expenses in the college or school chosen by the winning student. It is not the intention of the sponsor to give the award to the highest ranking senior in grades, but to the most deserving.

Plans are being made for the Central Missouri District association of Odd Fellows and Rebekahs which will be held Sept. 11 at the high school auditorium in Green Ridge. This association is composed of lodges in ten Central Missouri counties and a large number of people are expected to attend.

Jim Pace of the Hickory Point community is the president of the association this year and will preside.

The banquet will be served that evening by the ladies of the Green Ridge Presbyterian Church in the dining room of the church. The luncheon will be served at the lodge hall by the members of the Green Ridge Rebekah lodge.
